sidewalk superintendent. Dozens of cars, representing 31 classes, line Main Street from Temple to East Street, and on the sidewalk, along the Courthouse, traders and sellers display repair manuals and tables of antique parts.

Car show closes bargain event

An antique car show and costume judging will provide the grand finale today for Old Fashioned Bargain Days, which have brought thousands of shoppers to Washington C. H.

Exhibitors of antique and classic cars began registering at 9 a.m. today, and judging of scores of entries was scheduled for the afternoon. The 31-class show is being held on Main Street.

The costume judging will take place at 4:30 p.m. on the Courthouse lawn. Store employees having the best old fashioned costumes will receive cash awards.

Sidewalk sales will continue until 9 p.m. Other activities today include the Shrine Club's beef barbecue, and the book fair sponsored by the American Association of University Women.

The News In Brief

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (AP) — A teen-age boy with a blue-painted scar on his face was being hunted across the Isle of Man today after police said a fun palace fire that resulted in about 50 deaths probably was caused by arson.

HONOLULU (AP) — Sen. Daniel K. Inouye says he is not certain whether he called former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman a liar or a lawyer. The Hawaiian Democrat was reported to have commented over an open microphone, "What a liar," just after Ehrlichman testified before the Senate Watergate investigating committee last week.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Police gunfire killed a Mohawk man late Friday night after he had apparently shot and killed his 67-year-old sister at an Over-The-Rhine apartment.

The victims were identified by police as Bill Lay, 55, and his sister Carrie Howell. Police said she was shot during a family quarrel.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Outstanding consumer credit increased $2.06 billion in June with the largest increase in the area of non-installment loans such as charge accounts, the government says.

WASHINGTON (AP) — An FBI informer may have pulled the trigger that set off a fusillade killing four Kent State University students in 1970, Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., says.

In a letter to Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, Bayh said that the possibility was raised in letters sent to him by three Ohio National Guardsmen.

The three were in a skirmish line that fired a 13-second burst of bullets into a group of students demonstrating against President Nixon's decision to send troops into Cambodia. Nine other students were wounded in the May 4, 1970 incident on the Kent State campus. Bayh inserted the letters into the Congressional Record Friday, the same day Richardson announced the Justice Department was reopening its investigation into the deaths.

Richardson said he wants "to make

Pay measure being held from Nixon

Farm, highway, wage bills pass; Congress adjourns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress began a month-long recess today after sending President Nixon major farm and highway bills to sign and receiving from him a pledge to stop bombing Cambodia on Aug. 15, as Congress has demanded.

Another bill passed in the last-minute legislative flurry would raise the minimum wage to $2.20 in two steps, but it won't be sent to the White House for several weeks.

Congress expects Nixon to veto the bill and is not going to give him the opportunity to do so until after it returns to Washington on Sept. 5.

The three big bills passed by the House and Senate in a busy day of desk-clearing for the annual summer vacation were compromise versions of separate bills each body had passed earlier.

The farm bill inaugurates a new "target price" concept for computing price supports for wheat, cotton and corn under which payments would be made only when the market price drops below the target price. Currently the market prices are higher.

The bill also would limit payments to farmers to $20,000 a year, instead of $55,000 per crop each year as at present.

The House passed the bill 252-151, blocking a Republican effort to attach an amendment that would have barred strikers from receiving food stamps. It then sailed through the Senate on a voice vote.

The highway bill, given an overwhelming 382-34 vote on final passage in the House, would open up the highway trust fund for the first time for mass transit purposes.

No money could be taken from the trust fund for mass transit during this fiscal year. But starting July 1, 1974, $200 million would be available to help cities buy buses and a year later $800 million would be earmarked for buses, rail transit systems and urban highways.

The bill's manager, Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., held up final action on it until he received assurances from Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar that Nixon would sign it.

No such assurances could be given on the minimum wage bill by Labor Secretary Peter Brennan, although he said he would urge Nixon to sign it. However, several Republican senators and representatives said they expect a veto.

The bill, passed by the House 253-152, would increase the minimum wage from $1.80 to $2 two months after enactment, and to $2.20 on July 1, 1974. It would also cover 7 million additional workers, including state and local government employees and domestics.

The administration objects to the rapid increase to $2.20, to the new coverage, and to the failure of Congress to allow a lower minimum for teenage workers.

By not sending the bill to the White House until the end of this month,

Congress will prevent Nixon from pocket vetoing it, which is the term for killing a bill when Congress is out of session by simply declining to sign it.

Douglas orders bombing halt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas today ordered a halt to the bombing of Cambodia.

Douglas' action gives force to a lower court order which had decreed that the bombing stop on July 27. The U.S. Circuit Court in New York had blocked the effect of that order by issuing a stay.

Today, Douglas lifted that stay, allowing the lower court ban to become effective.

"The merits of the present controversy are ... to say the least, substantial, since denial of the application before me would catapult our airmen as well as Cambodian peasants into the death zone," Douglas wrote.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says Congress will have to take the blame for whatever fate might befall Cambodia after the administration halts all U.S. bombing in less than two weeks.

Nixon accused Congress Friday of "abandonment of a friend" by cutting off U.S. bombing and undermining his efforts to negotiate a ceasefire there.

Nixon made his statements in a letter. At the same time, administration officials said only unarmed reconnaissance and delivery flights would be made after the Aug. 14 cutoff date.

"I can only hope that the North Vietnamese will not draw the erroneous conclusion from this congressional action, 'that they are free to launch a military offensive in other areas of Indochina,'" Nixon said.

Congressional Democratic leaders made no response to Nixon's criticism of the cutoff.

"It was kind of strong," said Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, "but he's going to observe the deadline so I'm satisfied."

House Speaker Carl Albert said he read Nixon's letter not as an attack on Congress but as "saying he is going to follow the law."

As Nixon's letter was read to Congress, top defense officials announced that the only U.S. air activity in Cambodia or Laos beginning Aug. 15 will be reconnaissance flights and delivery of military equipment.

Officials said U.S. planes will not retaliate even in the unlikely event that one of the unarmed intelligence reconnaissance planes is shot down.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger Jr. ordered his commanders in Indochina to halt all other U.S. military activity in Cambodia and Laos at midnight Aug. 14, including, strafing, helicopter gunship strikes, air artillery spotting and use of American combat advisers.

Skylab capsule may work OK

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Space agency officials have expressed guarded confidence that the Apollo taxi ship of the Skylab 2 crew can bring the astronauts safely home after 59 days in orbit, thus avoiding a rescue mission.

Engineering detective work continued in an effort to pinpoint what caused two Apollo jet engines to spring leaks. If the problem is not understood thoroughly, a rescue ship might have to be launched about Sept. 10 to retrieve the three astronauts.

But if another jet engine fails or the laboratory has a major problem in the meantime, Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma would make a quick trip home in their Apollo, officials said Friday.

"We're planning to launch the next in line vehicle down at Cape Kennedy for a fundamentally unaltered Skylab 3 mission," explained Skylab Director William C. Schneider. "We're taking the prudent steps that would permit us to convert that to a rescue vehicle if such an event becomes necessary."

Bean, Garriott and Lousma remained safe and calm in their orbiting laboratory, pursuing their heavy experiment schedule as if nothing were wrong.

Throughout the day Friday they made no mention of the problem with the Apollo ship.

In fact, with their motion sickness cured, they seemed to be enjoying themselves.

During a 15-minute telecast beamed to Mission Control, Garriott pointed the camera to show the United States below and commented, "As you can see, we go along at a fast clip—around the world in 93 minutes and across the United States in almost the blink of an eye."

Garriott, a solar physicist, planned a long session today studying the sun with a battery of telescopes. Bean and Lousma were to aim earth resources sensors and cameras at a 9,000-mile stretch of earth from the northwest coast of the United States, across the mountain states, Texas, the Gulf of Mexico and northern South America.

Mission Control also gave Garriott and Lousma a go-ahead to take a space walk Monday to erect a second sunshade to help cool the laboratory and to replace telescope camera film.

WCH man arrested in grocery holdup

City police are holding Alton Kaylor, 42, of 330 N. Fayette St., in the city jail today in connection with the Friday night armed robbery of Bobo's Grocery and Carryout, 510 W. Oakland Ave.

Police said the holdup took place about 10:30 p.m. Mrs. Rosalie Bobo, working in the store at the time of the robbery, told police a man came in and asked for a can of beer. When she placed it on the counter, he drew a gun, told her to keep calm and walked behind the counter to the cash register.

Mrs. Bobo said she opened the cash register, from which the robber took more than $100 in cash. He also took a box containing about 30 cartons of cigarettes, valued at $110, and his beer. He told Mrs. Bobo to lie on the floor for five minutes and left the store.

Police spotted a car that fit the description given them a short time later, and arrested Kaylor.

A SOHIO STATION on Ohio 38 at I-71 was broken into between 12:30 and 4:25 a.m. Saturday, according to the Fayette County Sheriff's Department. The burglar forced an overhead garage door open to gain entry to the station, then pried into the cigarette and coffee vending machines. The amount of money taken and a list of other items taken were not completely determined Saturday morning.

Tim Pierce, 510 High St., told police his mini-bike was taken from his garage Friday. The bike was found wrecked along the nearby DT&I railroad tracks soon thereafter. A 10-year-old boy was implicated by police in the theft.

Russell Wood, 604 Gregg St., told police his bicycle was taken from its parking spot at Marting Manufacturing Co., 809 Delaware St., sometime Friday morning.

The sheriff's office also received a vandalism report from Ralph Wilt, Sabina. Wilt told the Sheriff's Department that a window in a house trailer owned by his brother, Grant Wilt, Columbus, was broken and the trailer was ransacked sometime after July 25. Nothing was found missing from the trailer, located at Jenks Road and I-71.

Demo reforms must be kept, group believes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic party reformers have unveiled a two-step strategy to block revision of the controversial 1972 delegate selection guidelines.

At a news conference Friday, leaders of the liberal Americans for Democratic Action proposed retention of the controversial guidelines and urged they be applied to all of state and local party committees.

At the same time, they accused former advocates of the changes, including National Chairman Robert S. Strauss and Sen. George McGovern, of indifference to the effort to making the party more open.

"There are some people in the party who don't seem to care very much if the doors of this party are open," said Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., the national chairman of ADA.

Fraser, who succeeded McGovern as chairman of the commission that wrote the 1972 reform rules, was joined at the press conference by Washington attorney Joseph L. Rauh, long active in party reform causes, and Mrs. Anne Wexler of Connecticut, who played a major role in writing the 1972 reforms.

Rauh conceded that one reason for urging extension of the reforms is to help fight the move to dilute them.

Chilean cabinet quits en masse

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Salvador Allende meets today with his advisers to consider his cabinet's resignation, a move taken to give him a free hand to deal with a massive transportation strike.

His 15 ministers handed in their resignations Friday night during a meeting with Allende over the strike by nearly all owners of trucks, buses and taxis. Their action was intended to give the Marxist president flexibility, including the ability to bring the military into the cabinet.

At first, the president's office said Allende flatly rejected the resignations. But a high official within Allende's popular unity coalition said later that the president decided to put off a decision until Monday or Tuesday.

Gray says he was 'used' by Watergate figures

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — L. Patrick Gray III, loyal follower of President Nixon, says he was used.

Gray told the Senate Watergate committee Friday of his shame and downfall as acting FBI director, a post he quit April 27 when it was made public that he destroyed papers from the White House safe of wiretapper E. Howard Hunt.

Gray read slowly from a 51-page statement, speaking in a near monotone, showing little outward sign of emotion.

Adding a few new details, he said he burned the papers with some Christmas wrappings at his home in Stonington, Conn., last December. He said he believed he was acting on orders of White House aides John W. Dean and John D. Ehrlichman. He said they gave him two sets of papers June 28, 1972 and told him they were political dynamite that should never see the light of day.

He said he read one of the papers before he burned them. It was a State Department cable implicating President Kennedy in the slaying of South Vietnamese President Diem in 1963. Gray said it shook him. He didn't realize then that the cables were fake, forged by Hunt in an unsuccessful attempt to plant a false, anti-Kennedy story with a magazine reporter.

Gray said he lied to Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen, who asked him about the Hunt papers last April 16 after Dean spilled the story to prosecutors.

"I slept little, if any, that night," Gray said. The next day he sought out Petersen and told him the truth, he said.

Nine days later, the story still unknown to the public, Gray said he telephoned his friend Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, who is a fellow Connecticut Republican and a member of the Watergate committee.

"For a week I had thought about this matter and of Sen. Weicker's staunch and valiant support of me and his warm friendship," Gray said. "I had a duty to tell him of these two files, yet my shame was so deep that it was hard to pick up the phone and call."

When he did tell Weicker, he lied about small details. He said he hadn't read the papers. He said he destroyed them soon after Dean and Ehrlichman gave them to him, rather than months later. He said he put them in an official FBI "burn bag" for destruction, rather than casually tossing them in the flames at home with the Christmas ribbons.

"I really cannot explain why I failed to tell Sen. Weicker all the facts at this time, and made misstatements to him," Gray said. "A sense of shame is all I can remember. I suppose I felt, in some irrational way, that I would look better in his eyes if I had destroyed them promptly and never looked at them."

Weicker gave the somewhat garbled story to newspapers the next day, forcing Gray's resignation and ending his agony. The Senate had refused to confirm him as permanent FBI director, and the White House had not withdrawn the nomination. Gray was left, as Ehrlichman put it in a bit of gallows poetry, to "hang there and twist slowly, slowly in the wind."

Gray said he hadn't known of "Mr. Ehrlichman's elegant phrase" until the Senate committee released it in the transcript of conversation between Ehrlichman and Dean.

Until he lied to Petersen, Gray said, "I believed that I was acting faithfully, loyally, properly and legally pursuant to instructions given me by top assistants to the President of the United States."

He said he now realized that his burning the papers was "a grievous misjudgment."

Gray, who quit a 20-year naval career to join Nixon's 1960 presidential campaign, said he was acting on

Students attend Youth School

Steve Paisley, David Ritenour and Cindy Davis of Fayette County were three of the 117 persons who attended Youth School held at Otterbein College last week.

The summer conference provided the young people with a working knowledge of the democratic procedure used in developing policy of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

The program included group discussion which were aimed toward teaching the youth how state government operates. There was a mock house of representatives with simulated bills moving through the committees and the legislature to become final laws.

The participants formed a mock

Farm Bureau. They used the various committees of Farm Bureau such as Public Affairs and Womens, Farm Bureau Board, and Landmark Cooperative Board to simulate the policy making process of the Farm Bureau.

The training conference which is one of five held in the state this summer, also featured classes in group singing, group recreation, adventures in good music, public speaking, manners, youth driver safety, square dance calling, and the organization of co-ops.

Cindy Davis and Steve Paisley were members of the Co-op Board with Cindy being elected president. David Ritenour was an advisory council member.

Weather damages soybeans

COLUMBUS — Recent weather conditions have left soybean fields in many areas with shredded leaves on most plants.

According to B.D. Blair, Extension entomologist at Ohio State University, growers should be sure if the damage to leaves was caused by recent storms or if insects are to blame before hauling out the insecticides.

Some green cloverworm activity has been reported in northwestern Ohio. Japanese beetles have been reported in large numbers in one field in southern Ohio. Blair says soybeans can lose a considerable portion of the leaf surface before bloom before insect control is justified. A "ball park figure" is 40 per cent of the foliage lost before controls are needed.

Blair is fielding such questions as "Can we control pests by aerial application of an insecticide?" In field and forage crop areas, the answer in most instances is yes, he says. However, better control may be obtained with some pests where the insecticide is concentrated in the row area. And, row applications require less insecticide in some instances than broadcast applications, he insists.

Aerial equipment is available throughout the state, can cover large acres, quickly, and is competitive with ground equipment in many instances. So, aerial applications for control of some insects can be effective, but proper distribution of the insecticides is essential. Wind velocity, altitude, location of the field in relation to obstructions, atmospheric conditions, and many other factors influence the results. The highly toxic nature of some compounds requires that aerial application of these materials be done only by and for persons willing to assume full responsibility for the consequences of drift onto non target objects and areas such as human beings, livestock, apiaries, susceptible crops, schools, homes, pastures, reservoirs, and streams, cautions Blair.

Application should be made at the lowest height compatible with effective dispersal and aerial safety and only when atmospheric conditions are such that drift of released material from the target field is minimal.

In 1972, the U.S. Department of Agriculture spent $3.47 billion on programs for food distribution, food stamps, child nutrition and school milk. This was nearly one-third of the entire USDA budget.

Clover worms seen in soybeans

By John Gruber
County Extension Agent, Agriculture
Green Clover Worms Working in Soybeans

If you haven't checked your soybean fields lately you might be surprised at what you find.

Green clover worms have been eating leaves in soybean fields on several farms in Fayette County during the last week. So far I have found the worms in about 20 soybean fields in Jefferson, Jasper and Union Townships.

Fortunately the worms are not at high enough populations to warrant chemical control. However, if you haven't checked your soybean fields lately I suggest you do so soon. If you have green clover worms in your soybeans you will want to keep an eye on feeding damage and the rate it is progressing.

Research has shown that when soybean leaves have been removed by hand during bloom stage, it takes about 25 per cent foliar loss to significantly decrease yields.

Green clover worms seem to be present in several counties in southern Ohio. One farmer in Scioto County was ready to spray but decided to check the field one more time. He reported that the plants appeared to be "growing out of it" and that many of the worms were dead.

I've found the same thing in some local fields. There are natural controls that may take care of the problem. The problem that exists if you do spray is that it may result in a spider mite problem which could be worse than the worms two or three weeks from now.

Mount Sterling entry wins in Buckeye Beef Show

A pen of three steers exhibited by John Brown of Mount Sterling and entered in the carcass grading of the Buckeye Beef Show held at the Ohio Expositions Center was judged the champion pen of three.

A 920-pound steer of Limousin and Angus breeding became the grand champion of the carcass contest. The steer was exhibited by Fred Molitor of Fayetteville and purchased by E.J. Demmitt of Troy.

The reserve champion steer of the carcass contest was a 1,240-pound Charolais shown by Bob Stacey of Arlington.

Carcass judges were Vern Cahill, professor of animal science at Ohio State University and Dick Falter of Village Packing Co., Columbus.

Prior to the carcass contest, the cattle were judged alive. This activity took place at the Ohio Expositions Center on July 9 and was followed by a sale of the live cattle.

Judges of the live show were Dick Falter and Herman Purdy, professor emeritus, Pennsylvania State University.

During the live show, a 1,185-pound steer of Charolais and Hereford breeding was judged champion. He was exhibited by Fred Miller of Lebanon.

The reserve champion of the live show was a 1,230-pound steer of Charolais and Hereford breeding. He was exhibited by John Meister of Bucyrus.

"This was an especially trim set of cattle. They were not wasty and had good cutability," remarked Vern Cahill.

The grand champion exemplifies this kind of carcass, Cahill pointed out. He had a 595-pound carcass, a rib eye area of 15.3 square inches, a fat thickness of only 1/4 inch, a cutability of 54.6 per cent, a yield grade of 1, a marbling score of 5, kidney fat of only 2.5 per cent, and he graded low choice.

The grand champion of the live show, entered in the heavy weight class, did not place in the carcass contest because he didn't quite make choice grade. His carcass lacked sufficient marbling to be considered choice. The heavy weight carcass winner was a steer of Charolais and Angus breeding shown by Nevin Smith of Bellefontaine.

The performance class was topped by the reserve champion of the carcass show, the 1,240-pound Charolais shown by Stacey. In this class, the rate of gain is taken into account along with other performance factors. The Stacey steer gained 2.45 pounds per day of age while growing to a low choice grade with a 16.2 square inch rib eye, three-tenths of an inch of back fat, a cutability of 52.6, a yield grade of 1.9 and a marbling score of 5.

Browns three Angus cattle ranged in weight from 900 to 990 pounds and ranged in grade from low to high choice. The pen of three judged in first place during the live show was Charolais-Hereford cattle ranging in weight from 1,170 to 1,240 pounds. They were shown by David Grube of Croton. The heavier steer in this pen failed to make choice grade, which disqualified the entry in the carcass test.

The Buckeye Beef Show is sponsored each year by the Ohio Cattlemen's Association and the Cooperative Extension Service of Ohio State University. Randall Reed, Extension animal science specialist, is general chairman of the event, and Bob VanStavern, Extension meat specialist, is superintendent of the carcass show.

Slaughtering operations closing doors statewide

The closing of meat slaughtering establishments, especially those killing only hogs or chickens, has greatly affected the quantity of meat available to Ohio consumers, according to Ohio Director of Agriculture Gene R. Abercrombie.

The Agriculture Department's Division of Meat Inspection licenses and inspects all Ohio slaughtering establishments which supply their meat to Ohio retail outlets. During the past two days a departmental survey conducted statewide has pointed out three general conditions which are present in the industry today.

"The slaughter of hogs in Ohio inspected establishments is very much reduced from a few months ago," Abercrombie said. "Many of our poultry plants would like to continue at their normal kill rate, but they have been forced to reduce their volume because of severe lack of birds."

Abercrombie also stated that the custom slaughter and processing operations are generally not reduced, in fact they may have increased their output slightly.

In summarizing the survey results, Abercrombie listed four establishments as completely closed, and two dozen more with an extreme reduction in hog and chicken kill.

"Our field staff have been bombarded with rumors and statements of all kinds," the Director continued, "but if the current economic situation of Phase III is not ended within the next week or sooner, the list of closed plants could be increased tenfold, and the supply of meat to Ohioans will be so small that prices could double, especially for pork and chicken."

"It wasn't the farmers or the meat

packers who asked for price controls," he concluded. "When the consumer trusted the federal government and asked for lower prices, the government stepped in and created a monster of the meat market. Now it will take months before any reasonable solution will come about, and prices will go up many times before they come back down."

New soil map now available

A revised map of Ohio's soil regions, published by the division of lands and soil of the Department of Natural Resources, is now available to the public.

The multi-colored map shows the locations of Ohio's seven major soil regions.

A text of the reverse side of the map describes the various soil associations within each of the seven major regions. The descriptions give the names and distinguishing features of the more common soils.

The information provided will be useful to educators, farmers, and construction and recreation planning groups.

This is the third revised edition of the map which was first printed in 1954.

Single copies of the map can be obtained free of charge by contacting the Division of Lands and Soil, Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Columbus, Ohio 43224.

Cattle rustling now real threat

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Farmers in rural West Virginia and in neighboring southeastern Ohio have been warned to expect increasing mischief from cattle rustlers. Some farmers have already adopted new security measures.

In Lawrence and Scioto counties, Ohio, cattle owners have formed a protective association to guard against increases in rustling expected to accompany the national beef shortage.

Feed full-energy, local soybean meal

Now you can make the fullest use of your valuable soybean meal. Research by leading universities, independent laboratories and the U.S.D.A. has proven the feeding and profit benefits of full-energy soybean meal. Brady now offers the efficient means to produce local, full-energy meal with the new 206 Crop Cooker. Look at what the portable, PTO powered, multi-use crop cooker can do for you:

- Produce up to and exceeding 2000 pounds of full-energy meal per hour.
- Extrusion process heat destroys bean growth inhibitor, retains rich oil in the meal.
- Use without changing existing storage facilities.
- Full-energy soybean meal lowers livestock feeding costs, improves profits.
- Full-energy soybean meal improves livestock maintenance, growth, reproduction, lactation and hair loss prevention.
- Full-energy soybean meal stays fresh.

Get all the facts today and increase your livestock profits tomorrow.

Solid wastes:

'Resources out of place'

COLUMBUS — Solid Wastes are valuable resources — not wastes to be discarded. This is the lesson we are learning in our efforts to reduce pollution in our communities, say the authors of a leaflet, "Solid Wastes . . . Resources Out of Place," published recently by the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service.

E. Paul Taiganides, professor of agricultural engineering, and Albert R. Pugh, Extension economist in community resource development at the Ohio State University insist that "We no longer can afford to throw away wood, paper, and metal resources, yet we still don't have the technology to re-use in a practical way what we throw away."

The authors point out that in the United States, we spent $5.7 billion in 1970 to collect and dispose of our solid wastes. The Council on Environmental Quality estimates that the cost will be $7.8 billion by 1975. This would amount to a 35 per cent increase in disposal cost in a period of five years.

Each year, we throw away 35 million tons of paper and cardboard, 71 billion cans, 38 million bottles and jars, 7.6 million television sets, 4 million tons of plastic, and 7 million cars and trucks, they state. The composition of household waste is changing, they add. Today's trash contains less and less garbage and ashes, items that decompose relatively quickly, and more paper, metals, glass and plastics.

The authors discuss various methods of collecting and disposing of solid wastes and progress being made toward recycling and re-use of the elements in these wastes. Emphasizing that management of waste really begins at home, they suggest ways to reduce the consumption of paper and throw-away containers, aiding in community efforts to collect and recycle wastes, and study to improve handling of solid wastes.

Combine header attachments reduce soybean losses

Start planning now for expert soybean harvesting this fall, suggests Delbert M. Byg, Extension agricultural engineer at Ohio State University. This planning should include considering the merits of combine header attachments, which need to be ordered soon if you expect to make use of them this season, Byg says.

Ohio research studies and field checks indicate that 85 to 90 per cent of machine losses when combining soybeans occurs in the gathering operation. Header losses usually average about 10 per cent of the crop yield, but with combine header attachments now available, these gathering losses may be reduced by more than one-half, the engineer explains.

Header attachments are essentially a "cutterbar-extension," moving the cutting knife about 10 inches ahead of the conventional cutterbar. This allows more room for tall soybean plants to change direction before entering the cross-auger, thus reducing the recutting loss. Also, the knife is "free floating" and cuts close to the ground, leaving a stubble height of about one inch, even though the combine may rock back and forth on uneven ground. This stubble height compares to a usual height of 3 to 5 inches or more with the conventional header.

Ohio harvesting studies show that stubble loss normally averages about 2.5 per cent of yield, shatter loss about 4.5 per cent of yield, and recut and lodged stalks about 3 per cent of yield. With the floating cutterbar extensions, the stubble loss should be reduced the most because the knife is now cutting below the pod set.

Shatter loss should also be reduced because the knife is no longer cutting through the pod sets. Also, the recutting of stalks should be reduced because of the better feeding of material to the cross auger. Some shatter loss will still remain though, as the pick-up type reel is still needed to feed soybeans into the cross auger. The reel produces some shattering of bean pods, especially at bean moisture levels of 10 per cent or less. The net result, however, should be a saving of one to two bushels per acre, reports the engineer.

Some disadvantages of these header attachments are that they must be installed as additional equipment, thus requiring some additional expenditure of time and money. Also, for maximum benefit the combine should have a hydraulic reel height control and a variable reel speed drive. More care may also be required in operating this header as heavy weed infestations can be troublesome.

Champ boar purchased

Andrews and Baughn of Bloomingburg purchased the Class III champion boar at the National Hampshire Conference held in Omaha, Neb. The sale price was $2,500.

The sale, held at the conclusion of the conference, grossed $123,980 on 135 head.

Soybean producers, however, should be aware of this equipment and its possible use. More information can be obtained from your local farm equipment dealer or by writing by Byg at 2073 Neil Ave., Columbus, Ohio 43210.

Students present recital

Piano students of Mrs. Frank Creamer were presented in a recital at her home on the Washington-Waterloo Rd. Those participating in the program and their selections were:

Michelle Ford: a group of hymns arranged for duet with Mrs. Creamer playing the second part, "Grandfather's Clock" — Florence Maxim and "Bike Hike" — John W. Schaum.

Roger Lovett: "Old McDonald"; "Chief Thundercloud"; and "Chicks" (from John Schaums Junior Animal Circus), also a duet with Mrs. Creamer playing the second part.

Wendy Hidy: "Overture" and "A Witch Within That Wood Doth Dwell" from Hansel and Gretel, adapted from the opera by Engelbert Humperdinck; "The Bag Piper;" and "Fiddler on the Roof"; "Matchmaker" and "If I Were a Rich Man" from the movie "Fiddler on the Roof."

Marilyn Creamer: "Sarabande",

"Aria," and "Gigue" all by Jack Butler.

To close the program, Mrs. Sears played a charming arrangement of "Chopsticks" by Thompson.

Tempting refreshments of ice cream cake roll and punch with floating strawberries were served to the guests with Mrs. Sears presiding at the punch bowl. The tea table was centered with a large hand crocheted doily made by the hostess' grandmother and a silver bowl filled with an old-fashioned arrangement of garden flowers. Nuts and mints were served from silver compotes.

Guests enjoying the delightful occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Hidy, Mrs. Gary N. Hidy, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Lovett, Dr. and Mrs. J.G. Jordan, Jerry Sears and Frank Creamer.

Footloose . . .

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

"I'd like to be a general practitioner in a small town," said Lisa Young, "People need a plain old doctor. I'd make house calls and I'd like to build a clinic, too. I'll do it, build that clinic, in six years!"

It sounds like high-flown talk coming from a fresh-faced 19-year-old who's going into her junior year at Augsburg College, Minneapolis, but when Lisa says something, you can figure she means business. She's already a woman of accomplishment.

A student whose academic average is 4 on a scale of 4, Lisa is putting herself through college by working as a nursing assistant at a hospital.

"I started out as a janitor," she said with a grin, "just so I could work in a national and international projects.

Walks have helped fund educational activities, farm co-ops and day care centers. They've provided scholarships, food and medical supplies, farm equipment, job training, legal advice and emergency assistance for Indians, migrant farm workers, and victims of poverty in inner city and rural areas of the United States.

Hands Across the Sea

"Abroad," said Lisa, "we've a lot of projects going, too. For example, our money has been used to organize a food depot and nutrition program in Zambia, and we've funded schools in Tanzania, model homes and training schools in Guatemala. The list is endless."

This summer, the Foundation is sponsoring a meeting with the Winnebago Nation in northern Nebraska on August 24, 25 and 26.

"We hope that upwards of 1,000 young people from all over the country will take part," Lisa said. "We will join the Indians in a three-day fast to show them that we sympathize with their plight. We're going to powwow with them and let them tell us what we can do to help. They need our support. They've been stripped of their pride in our schools where all they read about is Custer. They are a wonderful people — warm, friendly, hospitable with strong family bonds."

Lisa, a petite dynamo with giant-size energy, feels strongly about what the Foundation can accomplish.

"Sooner or later, hunger in Appalachia or in India affects all of us," she said. "We're not out to change the world. All we want to do is help the people of the world and stop some of the suffering."

Lisa Young

hospital, but I really wanted to get involved with patients."

Pre-med studies are just one facet of her busy life. Lisa, involved with the American Freedom from Hunger Foundation since her senior year of high school, was recently elected chairman of its National Governing Board of Trustees, the youngest and the first of her sex to head the Board. (She replaced 66-year-old Robert Nathan, an economic consultant, who was advisor to four Presidents.)

Fighting Poverty

The Foundation is the organization which in the last six years has raised about $14 million for hunger-and-poverty-alleviating programs, and it's all been done with the "footpower" of millions of young people.

"Our big activity each year," said the head of the Board, "is what we call a 'Walk for Development.' The Walks take place in major cities. Each walker — and four out of five are teenagers — has sponsors who agree in advance to pay a certain sum for each mile walked. That's how we raise money."

"We had one walker who was sponsored for $250 per mile. We were egging him on because $250 times 30 miles is $7,500. Thank goodness, he had strong arches."

This year more than a quarter-million walkers participated and it is expected that their sponsors (business and community leaders, friends and relatives) will contribute close to $2½ million to the Foundation.

Self-help Programs

How is the money spent? To help people help themselves.

"The Projects Committee compiles a list of worthy causes," said Lisa. "The list is given to local leaders and each group then decides which activities it want to fund."

There is just one stipulation: The money must be evenly divided between

IRANIAN EGGPLANT CASSEROLE

For adventurous cooks!

- 2 eggplants (each about 1 1/4 pounds), peeled and cut into 1/2-inch slices
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 cup (about) peanut oil
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 3 eggs
- Yogurt

Sprinkle eggplant with 1 1/2 teaspoons salt and place in large bowl. Cover with a plate and weigh down with a heavy object. Let stand 45 minutes. Drain off liquid. Heat 1/4 cup of the oil in a large skillet over moderate heat. Add eggplant and cook, a few slices at a time, until soft and lightly browned. Add more oil as needed. Place cooked eggplant in a large bowl. Add remaining 1/2 teaspoon salt, the pepper, garlic and lemon juice; mash well. Beat eggs until foamy; fold into eggplant mixture. Turn into oiled 1 1/2-quart shallow baking dish. Bake at 350 degrees about 45 minutes. Serve with yogurt. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

MRS. GARY L. ROHRER

Miss Lilly, Mr. Rohrer exchange marriage vows

Rev. Denis Howard performed the double-ring ceremony which united in marriage Miss Sharon Lynn Lilly and Gary Lee Rohrer. The ceremony took place in the Fayette Bible Church July 14.

Candelabra adorned with assorted multi-colored flowers, greenery and bows completed the setting. The pews were marked with greenery and rainbow ribbon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Lilly and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rohrer, all of New Holland.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of nylon organza. Delicate detailing with daisy trim and rich cotton lace lavished the empire bodice. The long sheer lantern sleeves ended in lace. The full flowing skirt ended in a train. Her long flowing mantilla of silk illusion was edged in matching lace. The bride's only jewelry was a silver cross necklace, a gift of the groom. She carried an arrangement of white sweetheart roses, carnations and orchids and baby's breath.

Mrs. Lilly was matron of honor, and Miss Terri Johnson was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Mike Barton, Mrs. Jerry Burton and Miss Kathy Smith. Miss Jetta Sue Mackey was the junior bridesmaid.

Mrs. Lilly wore a mint green chiffon floral formal length gown with empire waist and long sheer sleeves. A large bow was at the back. She wore a matching picture hat. Miss Johnson wore a pale pink floral chiffon gown with matching hat. The other attendants wore matching gowns except in multi-colors of blue, lavender, yellow and peach with matching picture hats. They carried hurricane lamps with daisies, carnations, statice and baby's breath.

The Misses Melanie and Kristi Doyle, nieces of the groom, were flower girls. Their dresses were like the other attendants except in mint green and pink and they carried baskets of spring flowers.

Randy Rohrer served as best man for his brother. Seating the wedding guests were Mike Barton of Mount Sterling, senior usher, Neil Woods of New Holland, Bruce Lilly of Circleville, and Randy Kirkpatrick of New Holland. Brian Rohrer, cousin of the groom, was the ring bearer.

Mrs. Lilly, mother of the bride, wore a formal length gown of ivory white knit with popcorn stitch bodice, and long sleeves with ivory accessories. Mrs. Rohrer, the groom's mother wore a long pastel gown with long sheer sleeves with which she combined white accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of pink and green carnations.

Hostesses for the reception which followed in Fellowship Hall were Mrs. Marvin Roszmann, Mrs. Jerry Sparks, Miss Karen Van Meter, Miss Kathy Salyers, Miss Nella Surgenor and Miss Debbie Krupla.

The bride table was centered with a seven-tiered wedding cake topped with a bridal couple. Miss Nancy Holloway presided at the guest book.

For her going away outfit, the new Mrs. Rohrer chose a full-length ivory halter top dress. Following a trip to Niagara Falls, the couple is now residing at 208 W. Front St., New Holland.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Rohrer are graduates of Miami Trace High School. He is employed at International Harvester in Springfield.

Lamb dishes help keep food costs low

By TOM HOGE

AP Newsfeatures Writer

In this day of soaring meat costs, it is refreshing to note the modest price labels on the spring lamb coming in from New Zealand, a pleasant land that is spring-like most of the year.

I learned some interesting things about New Zealand lamb while lunching recently with Joe Pereira, noted chef who ran the restaurant complex at the New Zealand Pavilion for Expo '70 in Osaka, Japan.

For instance, there are more than 60 million sheep grazing on New Zealand farms or roughly 20 sheep for every human being in that country. Small wonder that more than nine tenths of the country's export earnings come from farm products. In fact, grassland farming has enabled New Zealand to become the world's prime exporter of lamb. The balmy weather that lasts most of the year "down under" and the moist green pastures make ideal conditions for raising sheep.

"Our sheep are milk-fed, pastured and then flash-frozen at the peak of tenderness," said Pereira, munching on a lamb chop.

All New Zealand lamb is comparatively reasonable, but for a real bargain get lamb shoulder which can be cut into chops, grilled or diced for stew. Or you can try the "down under" version of the New England boiled dinner.

Those of us who operate on a tight household budget might keep in mind the fact that lamb makes good leftover dishes. For instance, when you roast a leg of lamb, you can put the remainder to many uses. Lamb curry is delicious, and so are green peppers stuffed with ground lamb and rice and then baked. There is lamb and onion hash, lamb pies with a mashed potato crust and even a dish known as Hong Kong lamb chow mein.

For something different try this recipe for New Zealand Boiled Dinner.

- 1 lamb shoulder about 5 pounds
- 4 quarts of water or enough to cover
- 8 sprigs parsley
- 6 peppercorns
- 4 whole cloves
- 3 cloves garlic
- 2 teaspoons thyme
- 2 bay leaves
- 2 tablespoons salt
- 1 small cabbage quartered
- 3 carrots, peeled and quartered
- 12 small white onions, peeled
- 12 small white potatoes, peeled
- 2 small turnips, peeled and sliced
- 6 small beets, cooked and sliced
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Remove outer tissue from lamb and trim excess fat. Place meat in large kettle. Pour in water, adding seasonings and simmer till tender, or about 90 minutes. One half hour before serving, add all vegetables, except beets. When tender, drain vegetables and meat. Reserve stock. Arrange lamb on large platter and surround with vegetables. Add beets, sprinkle potatoes with parsley. Makes 6 servings. Good with chilled ale.

1,000 miles in saddle to aid underprivileged

CAPETOWN, S. Africa (AP) — An 18-year-old girl rode an Arabian horse more than 1,000 miles from Pretoria to Cape Town, to raise money for underprivileged children and to demonstrate the worth of the breed. The girl said she found her mount very adaptable and fantastic in traffic.

You can save money and conserve energy by keeping your car well tuned and the emission control equipment working properly. Change air and oil filters regularly and be sure your tires are properly inflated.

She's two short

This is two inches below the minimum height standard for staff members, which was set, said hospital directors, according to medical advice.

Fat women 'beautiful' when hunger threatens

QUEBEC (AP) — In times or places where men fear starvation, the fat woman is beautiful, says Dr. Jean Tremolieres, of the dietary research unit at the Bichat Hospital in Paris.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the Canadian Pediatric Society here, Tremolieres said a woman's plumpness offers reassurance that the fear of starvation will not come true.

You can save money and help improve the environment by starting a compost heap of leaves, grass, vegetable scraps, and other biodegradable waste. The compost will be a valuable addition to your vegetable and flower gardens next year.

Plan photos on licenses

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Beginning the first of next year, Ohio drivers will receive their licenses on the spot, including a color photograph.
Highway Safety Director Eugene O'Grady said Friday the state awarded a contract to supply the licenses to Polaroid Corp. beginning Jan. 1, 1974, at a cost of 33.9 cents for each license.
"The on-site licensing program will allow the motorist to get his license on the spot, without having to wait for processing and mailing from Columbus," O'Grady said.
In addition, photographs should provide the public with positive identification for banking and shopping, while aiding policemen making traffic arrests or vehicle checks, he said.
Drivers' licenses will continue to be issued for four years. Addition of the color photo will not increase the current cost of $5.50 per license, he said.

Coming week to be critical for beef sales

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — This weekend may be the last for awhile that shoppers will find unlimited amounts of beef awaiting their purchase.

Retailers predict next week to be critical for beef sales. They say consumers will then feel the affect of the closings this week of many major Ohio meat packing firms.

Great Scot stores in Findlay has already announced it is limiting meat purchases to one-third of a customer's total bill.

"If I put all my beef out now, it would be gone by tonight," said Charles Sheets, manager of a Columbus IGA store.

Large chains reported adequate supplies of all meat cuts, but most said they were displaying beef in limited quantities to discourage hoarding.

"We don't put it all out at once. I say, let the customer's consciences be their guides," said Jack Anderson, a manager at a Big Bear store.

Anderson said Big Bear, which owns its own meat processing plant, would have adequate supplies for at least another week.

"After that, who knows?" Anderson said.

In Cleveland, a Kroger spokesman said the chain had no shortages of beef, pork, poultry or dairy products there as weekend shopping began. No limit was put on meat purchases.

"We're selling it strictly on a first-come, first-served basis," he said.

Canadian beef was selling at 30 per cent higher than domestic beef and rising, he said. "It's getting ridiculous and we're going to quit buying Canadian beef if they keep raising prices," he said.

A survey of retail outlets in the Cincinnati area indicated that people still were buying meat in huge quantities, but there were no serious shortages.

One Columbus A & P meat manager looked optimistically at the shortage of red meat.

"After all the beef is gone, we will have nothing but profitable items, such as pork and poultry for sale," Joe Groom said.

Watergate case

campaign, said his long-standing loyalty to the President prompted him to warn him last July about "confusion" in the FBI's Watergate investigation.

Gray said he had been getting conflicting information from Dean, Ehrlichman, CIA Director Richard Helms and CIA Deputy Director Vernon Walters about whether his investigation would uncover CIA secrets in Mexico.

Gray says he didn't know the extent to which White House staff members had pushed Helms and Walters to interfere. The FBI was tracking of Nixon campaign money that went through Mexico and into the account of wiretapper Bernard L. Barker, a former CIA hireling.

Gray said that on July 6, when Walters finally told him that no CIA secrets would be uncovered by the investigation, "I was confused, uncertain and uneasy." Gray and Walters agreed Gray should call Nixon.

He got in touch with Nixon by telephone and told him, "Dick Walters and I feel that people on your staff are trying to mortally wound you by using the CIA and FBI..."

Gray said he didn't tell Nixon anything more specific. "There was a slight pause and the President said, 'Pat, you just continue to conduct your aggressive and thorough investigation.'"

Gray said he had no further trouble, and concluded he had been an alarmist.

Gray is scheduled to return to the witness chair Monday at 9:30 a.m. EDT to begin answering questions. The committee plans to question two more witnesses, Petersen and former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, before going into summer recess.

In other developments, White House chief of staff Alexander Haig said President Nixon briefed him on the contents of the controversial Oval Office tapes and telephone conversations.

Haig said he originally wanted to release the contents of the tapes to clear up the Watergate controversy, but changed his mind because of a "general conclusion (among Nixon aides) that the tapes would not be a major factor."

Haig made his comments in an interview with Mike Wallace on the CBS-TV program "60 Minutes."

Bengals in exhibition opener tonight

MIAMI (AP) — Jim Del Gaizo, the second-year Miami Dolphins' quarterback who says he'd rather be traded than spend another year backing up Bob Griese and Earl Morrall, gets a chance to display his talents tonight against the Cincinnati Bengals.

But the lefty has refused interviews to reporters and says he won't talk to anyone until after the National Football League exhibition.

Both clubs are expected to use younger players most of the way tonight—although Bengal Coach Paul Brown says he will start his regulars.

But Brown said he plans to take "a good look" at his younger players at various stages of the game.

Dolphin Coach Don Shula says Morrall and running back Larry Csonka will not play at all. He said Griese and receivers Paul Warfield and Howard Twilley may see action.

Meanwhile, linebacker Nick Buoniconti said Friday that too much is being made out of the Dolphins' 18-game winning streak.

"The fans, the press, they've got to have a more relaxed attitude about these exhibition games," said Buoniconti.

"Everybody's worried if we're going to win our 19th straight," he said. "If we win they'll be worried about No. 20."

Buoniconti said he realizes that fans who pay $7 and $8 a seat deserve to see the veterans "knocking heads."

However, the veteran middle linebacker added: "When the veterans are playing and the rookies are sitting instead of the other way around, how can a head coach properly evaluate his young talent?"

Last year, the Bengals defeated the Dolphins 27-10 in a preseason opener.

Wilson sparkles for Astros

Nolan's arm sore as Cincy splits

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Houston pitcher Don Wilson was hoping for a little help against Cincinnati's booming bats. The Astros gave him one run, but it was enough.

"I kidded Lee May on the bus coming to the park. I told him maybe the Reds had tired themselves out against Atlanta," said Wilson after hurling a 10-inning 1-0 shutout in the first game of a doubleheader Friday.

The Reds, who overpowered Atlanta 17-2 the night before, managed only four hits off Wilson, but regained their hard-hitting ways to take the nightcap 11-5.

It was the fifth time the Reds scored more than 10 runs in a game during the past week.

The victory was Wilson's first since July 1 and moved him within one of the Astros' club shutout record of 16 held by teammate Larry Dierker.

"I don't know why I pitch some of my best ball against the Reds," said Wilson, who nohit Cincinnati in 1969. Now 7-12 for the season, he has a 13-11 career mark against the Reds.

The Astros scored their 10th inning run when Cesar Cedeno's sacrifice fly scored Tommy Agee, who got on base on a throwing error by shortstop Darrell Chaney. Roger Metzger's single moved Agee to third.

The run ended a brilliant pitching duel which began with the Reds' Gary

Nolan, recently removed from the disabled list, blanking the Astros for six innings.

But his performance was not without problems. Nolan asked to be taken out of the game early, but stayed.

"I'm glad I kept us in the game, but I'm not glad about the way I felt. The arm was sore. It's hard to describe, and I can't put it into words," he said.

"He didn't think he was going to make it," said Manager Sparky Anderson. "I thought he did fine."

Catcher Johnny Bench added a negative note.

"It's wishful thinking to say he's back. You can't fool anyone who saw it. He's hurting. It wasn't there and he didn't want to foul us up. He's been under a lot of pressure and a lot of demands," said Bench.

Clay Carroll, 3-6, took the loss.

In the nightcap, Houston erupted for four runs in the first inning and held a 5-4 lead before the Reds exploded for seven runs in the seventh, capped by Pete Rose's three-run bases-loaded double.

A record regular season crowd of 52,285 watched the contrasts in achieving victory.

Reliever Pedro Borbon, 4-4, took the win and Tom Griffin, 0-4, was the loser.

"We had to win that one," said Rose. "It was a must game for us." Rose's 4-for-8 performance lifted his batting average to .339.

The Reds were to send Fred Norman, 9-9, against former San Diego teammate Dave Roberts, 11-8, today.

Reds tickets on sale

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds announced today that due to an unusual demand, tickets for outfield seats are on sale for a three-game series with Atlanta Sept. 14-16.

The Reds said they are being deluged with requests for left and center field seats as Hank Aaron of the Braves continues his pursuit of Babe Ruth's alltime home run record.

Lions nip Redskins in exhibition fray

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Duane Thomas made his first National Football League appearance since leading Dallas to its Super Bowl victory over a year ago, but it didn't help Washington very much as the Redskins were upended by the Detroit Lions 17-14 in their exhibition opener Friday night.

Errol Mann booted a 10-yard field goal early in the fourth period for the winning margin as the Lions toppled the defending National Conference champions.

Greg Landry tossed a nineyard touchdown pass to wide receiver Larry Walton and veteran running back Mel Farr scored on a 47-yard dash for Detroit's touchdowns. Billy Kilmer hooked up with Jerry Smith on a two-yard touchdown pass and Moses Denison scored on a six-yard run for Washington's points.

Thomas, acquired recently from the San Diego Chargers, sat out the 1972 season after starring in Dallas' Super Bowl triumph in Jan., 1972. He carried the ball 11 times and gained 36 yards.

Last year's NFL most valuable player, Washington running back Larry Brown, did not play. He only recently signed his contract.

Mercer, Jones clout HRs

County BR stars pop Greenfield in opener

The Fayette County Babe Ruth All-Star team, behind a solid offensive attack and the combined three-hit pitching performance of Howard Boggs and Jeff Elliot, paddled Greenfield 11-3 in the opening round of the Fayette County Babe Ruth tournament Friday night at Roszmann Field.

While Boggs and Elliot were handcuffing the Greenfield hitters, Ted Mercer and Mark Jones supplied the necessary firepower for the county stars managed by Buck Caulley.

Mercer sparked the offensive attack for the Fayette Countians as he cracked a three-run home run and drove in a total of four runs. Mark Jones also pounded a roundtripper, while Jack James had two hits in four appearances at the plate and Wes Williams had a single and two runs batted in.

DEFENSIVE gems by Mark Fisher and Rex Coe stopped several Greenfield scoring threats.

Greenfield pushed across an unearned run in the first and held the Fayette Countians scoreless until a third inning explosion when the county stars erupted for six runs as a total of 10 batters stroled to the plate.

In the productive third inning, the Fayette Countians had five singles and three walks.

Mercer slammed his three-run homer over the rightfield fence in the fourth when the county stars added three more runs, but Greenfield countered with two runs on doubles by Cole and Nelson. In the fifth frame, Mark Jones hit a two-out homer over the centerfield fence.

Boggs hurled five innings, allowing only two hits and fanned a total of six batters. He was relieved by Elliot who gave up one hit and fanned four. Nelson absorbed the setback for Greenfield and Wiscup provided relief help.

In the second game at Roszmann Field Friday, Gahanna scored a 9-7 win over Jamestown.

Jamestown and Greenfield will clash at 1 p.m. today while the Fayette County stars will meet Gahanna in the 3:30 p.m. game. The tourney's championship game is tentatively scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday.

Buckeye Hills quartet takes Pro-Am tourney

GREENFIELD — A team from Buckeye Hills Country Club near Greenfield captured top honors in the Greater Cincinnati Pro-Am tournament held recently at the Cincinnati Pleasant Run Golf Center.

The quartet of club pro Tom Robertson, of Greenfield, Tom Blackstone, of Greenfield, and Jim Croker and Bob Snider, both of Washington C.H. turned in a sizzling 115 total with handicap, which was 27-under-par.

Robertson shot a 71 which was only three strokes off the winning 68 score turned in by pro Pete Jannott, of the Jack Nicklaus Kings Island Golf Center. There were 43 teams entered in the tournament.

(June 22 to July 23)

Some new trends in the making. Study carefully and be sure to check all propositions before accepting. Romance and travel favored.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Teamwork stressed now. Fall in line with the aims of associates and you'll find that cooperative efforts bring fine results.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Some tension indicated. Avoid highly strung or neurotic persons, and keep out of situations which could needlessly involve you in others' problems.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

A better-than-average day — one which encourages your best efforts. Stretch the imagination without overplaying it. Concentrate on new methods, ideas.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Auspicious for just about anything that strengthens the link between men of good will and counteracts indiscretion, hoththeadedness and intolerance.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

You can coast on your laurels if you do not actually waste time or dissipate talents. The restful day is also useful, indulged with proper purpose.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

A fine Uranus aspect encourages your particular know-how, sensitivity to situations and reasoning powers. These are winners always — but especially now.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Some situations complicated. Be sure you have all the facts before making decisions. Whether day is for recreation or you have strenuous tasks, remain serene.

YOU BORN TODAY are one of the most versatile of all Leontes — and that is saying a lot. You have so many talents and so much imagination that you may find it difficult, at first, to find your proper niche in life. Once you have found it, however, there is no limit to the heights you can attain. You would make an excellent writer, a brilliant actor, a dynamic lawyer or statesman, but can also shine in the business world where your organizing and executive abilities, coupled with your gifts of leadership, salesmanship and promotion would take you to the top in a most dramatic way. Traits to curb: fault-finding, overaggressiveness and obstinacy.

MONDAY, AUG. 6

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

You may be tempted by a business offer, but find out just what it entails. Above all, don't fall for any get-rich-quick schemes.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

Keep emotions under stern control. Any tendency to "fly off the handle" could result in serious misunderstandings.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

Curb an inclination to take on more than you can reasonably handle. You will only scatter energies and accomplish less in the long run.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

A conflict between business and personal affairs may bring on some tension. You can counter by isolating the essential and getting it out of the way.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Stellar influences favor business and financial affairs. Day will be especially good for making long-term commitments and handling real estate matters.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

A day in which to make new starts — in new directions; to lead rather than to follow. Stellar influences favor all pioneering efforts.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Especially favored now: Educational pursuits, travel, research. Achievement is possible in out-of-the-ordinary ways and places.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Splendid aspects stimulate artistry and encourage new tries at enterprises which may have failed before but still have potential.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Study reasons for existing limitations. Concentrate on significant issues without neglecting minor items. A good period for tackling jobs that require patience.

Birth certificate link to McGovern at Fort Wayne?

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP)—A search is expected to begin Tuesday or Wednesday for a birth certificate allegedly naming George S. McGovern as father of an illegitimate child.

Saying he was "very reluctant to authorize any sort of snooping expedition," U.S. District Judge Hermann E. Busse Friday gave limited approval to a check of illegitimate birth records here.

The Washington Post reported this week that the "Fort Wayne story" mentioned in the Senate Watergate hearings was that McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential candidate, had fathered an illegitimate child here in the early 1940s.

The South Dakota Democrat denied the story.

The "Fort Wayne story" was referred to in a memorandum from former White House Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman. The nature of the story was not revealed at the hearings.

Busse granted access to the confidential records to attorneys for the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel and the city health department on condition that if the controversial birth certificate is found, the mother and child's name will be withheld.

He also stipulated the newspaper should tell the public if the search is unsuccessful.

Attorneys said they plan to meet Monday and would start the checks by Wednesday morning.

"I'm a Republican, but I wouldn't go along with scandalizing George McGovern," Busse said before issuing the order. "I wouldn't go along with trying to hang him to a tree or anything like that."

The Washington Post said it had confirmed existence her of a birth certificate listing a George S. McGovern of Mitchell, S.D., as the father of a child born out of wedlock. Mitchell is Sen. McGovern's hometown.

The newspaper said the mother told it her late husband, not McGovern, was the father. She said she had known McGovern in the 1940s but hadn't listed his name on the birth certificate and didn't know who did.

A former Fort Wayne health department employee said Friday she recalls an incident last year over what she believes is the same birth certificate. But Virginia McVay, formerly in charge of the records division for the Fort Wayne Board of Health, said the certificate never contained the name of the father.

She said a man who carried an identification card from the U.S. Senate attempted to get a copy of the birth certificate on Aug. 18, 1972.

The Icelandic language has remained virtually unchanged since the 12th century.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

If you missed the mark somewhere, review causes and effects. A change in methods and reasoning may be necessary. A new day for achievement and a new way is before you.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Avoid any urge to take foolish chances, but do not be so hesitant that you lose a golden opportunity. Foresightedness needed.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Avoid extremes and don't misjudge others' intentions or actions. Work may seem strenuous, people around you more difficult to get along with, but YOU can cope with days like this.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with an innate quality of leadership; are high-spirited, imaginative and, with your great love of beauty, music and the theater, would hardly be attracted to any vocation which precluded all three. The theater should be your first choice — as actor, producer, director — but you may well write, in which case, you will inject both beauty and drama into your work. Your flair for the dramatic may also lead you into becoming a brilliant trial lawyer and, in business, you would make an outstanding executive.

The outlook is for mostly sunny skies in Ohio Saturday and Sunday, with little chance of rain.

High temperatures during the period will be in the lower 80s Saturday and up a little into the mid 80s Sunday except upper 70s near Lake Erie. During the night temperatures will cool to the upper 50s and lower 60s.

Skies were mostly clear over Ohio Friday night and Saturday morning and some patchy clouds remained in eastern Ohio and patchy ground fog formed in some valleys and near streams. There were a few widely scattered showers detected by radar in eastern sections of the state Friday evening but these moved into Pennsylvania and West Virginia during the early morning hours.

Fair and warm Monday through Wednesday. Highs in the 80s. Lows in the 60s.

Burr Oak Park lodge, cabins closed down

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The lodge and cabins at Burr Oak State Park near Gouster were closed today by order of Gov. John Gilligan after three bomb scares in the last four days.

Gilligan's order will be in effect for a maximum of 60 days.

Gilligan said he ordered the park's closure on the recommendation of Morgan County Sheriff Paul Work "to insure the safety of innocent Ohio citizens and protection of state property."

Management and employees of Ohio Inns Inc., which operates the lodge and restaurant, have been at odds for months over recognition of a union.

An attorney for Ohio Inns said today the firm will sue the state for damages if the lodge and restaurant are closed for any length of time.

The attorney, Robert Townsend of Cincinnati, said the state should call out Ohio National Guardsmen to protect park visitors and allow continued free access to the area.

Officials said only the lodge and cabins were being closed. The park remains open for boating, fishing and other activities.

Trouble started developing at the lodge after about 50 members of Hotel Workers Local 505 went on strike in April and Ohio Inns hired workers to replace them.

Picketing has continued and there have been rock-throwing incidents. One recent bomb scare routed guests from their rooms at 2:30 a.m.

Officials said the Ohio Highway Patrol was prevented from intervening by a state law which prohibits it from entering labor disputes.

'John Doe' warrant issued in murder

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—A "John Doe" murder warrant was issued by Newark police Friday for a man wanted in the slaying of a man whose body was found this week under a box in an abandoned gravel pit.

Pathologists said the death of Michael Durham, 19, of Tinley Park, Ill., was due to throat wounds and possible strangulation. Police theorize he was killed by a hitchhiker.

♣ A K 9 8 5 4 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	1♠	3♣	Pass
3♥	Pass	3♠	Pass

Opening lead - queen of spades.

When declarer has a long suit to run, it is sometimes possible for him to accomplish what appears to be impossible. Here is a case of this sort.

South is in six clubs and — if you look at all four hands — it would seem that he must go down one. Apparently the best he can do is discard a heart on one of dummy's high spades and later lose two diamonds, or discard a diamond and later lose a heart and a diamond. However, South can make the slam, despite the dim outlook, if he plays his cards right. He should assume that West, for his overall, has the ace of diamonds and gear his play to that assumption.

Accordingly, he wins the opening lead with the king of spades, plays the Q-J of trumps, cashes the ace of spades, discarding a heart, and plays four more rounds of trumps to produce this position:

WEST

♥ K 8
EAST
♦ Q J
SOUTH
♥ K 8

Now South plays his last trump and West, who cannot spare a heart, discards a spade. Declarer thereupon leads the eight of diamonds to West's ace and in that way brings home the slam.

For this method of play to succeed, declarer must find West with five or more hearts, but since it is South's only chance he should assume that West has that holding.

Kidney Transplants Succeed

Transplantation of kidneys in children has reached a new peak of success at The Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston.

They have recently released exciting statistics that 95 per cent of the children operated on in the past year are maintaining good kidney function.

For reasons not yet completely understood, children are better candidates for transplantation than adults.

It is hoped that information acquired may later be translated into a better understanding of why some adults reject transplants.

Such remarkable results are indeed a testimonial to the scientific research in progress all over the world.

A writer who fractured her jaw had a terrible time drinking the liquids prescribed for her during the time that her jaws were wired together. She found the liquid to be nourishing, but boring and sometimes unpalatable.

When she recovered she decided that "something must be done about the liquid diet."

Wilma King, of the Stamford University School of Medicine, wrote a book cleverly titled, "Blend and Mend."

The book contains many interesting recipes for people who cannot chew their food.

Can you conceive of a Steak Shake? An Apple Pie drink? These are two of the intriguing items to look forward to if one had this diet limitation. It is known that when patients go into severe shock blood accumulates in the abdomen and in the legs, and fails to circulate properly.

The result is that there is a marked fall in the blood pressure which then threatens the life of the victim.

Many new scientific advances are the peace-time results of research of the Armed Forces.

From the United States Army Aeromedical Research Laboratory, at Fort Rucker in Alabama, comes a new device known as the "pneumatic trouser."

Lt. Col. Burton H. Kaplan, of Newburg, New York, created this unique pair of trousers to re-circulate blood that stagnates in the abdominal cavity of patients in shock.

The layers of the trousers are inflated with a foot pump, and helps to return the patient's blood pressure to normal.

This excellent device serves as a temporary substitute method of "transfusion" when blood is not readily available.

Ambulance and emergency rescue teams are being taught to use the pneumatic trousers to help accident victims.

Many accident victims probably might not have survived before reaching the hospital without the use of this brilliantly conceived inflatable trouser.

Women buy more term insurance

BOSTON (AP) — More and more women are buying term life insurance, one expert says.

Sabino Marinella, president of Continental Investment Corp., says young married women are in the vanguard of this surge.

Over 4.3 million women in this category took out term policies in 1972. This is a 20 per cent increase over 1962, when there were 3.6 million new policyholders.

Hotel falls; believe 5 persons dead

NEW YORK (AP) — Firemen using two cranes searched truckloads of rubble today for persons feared buried when an eight-story section of the once-elegant Broadway Central Hotel collapsed.

By dawn, fire officials had accounted for all but five of those registered at the hotel. They said customers and employees in a novelty shop in the collapsed section also might have been trapped.

Most of those in the 119-year-old former landmark in the East Village, now the University Hotel, escaped when rumble sent plaster to the floors before of the thundering collapse late Friday afternoon.

At least 19 persons, including three policemen and a fireman, were treated at hospitals and released. More than 100 were made homeless and relocated.

There were 325 persons registered at the hotel, 23 of them in the part that tumbled down. About 120 of those staying in the hotel are welfare clients living by themselves.

Fire Chief John T. O'Hagan attributed the collapse to age and the weakening of the structure by decades of vibrations from street and subway traffic.

The entire south-central section and parts of the east wall cascaded in a roaring avalanche of wood, brick and mortar that piled 20 feet high at some points along Broadway.

Financial overhaul plan explained

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has proposed a major overhaul of the country's banking system to raise interest rates on savings deposits and make it easier to buy a home.

Nixon proposed lifting over a 5½ year period the 5 to 5½ per cent ceiling on interest rates that banks and savings and loan associations can pay on savings deposits.

He called the existing system outmoded and said the interest limitations often forced investors to go elsewhere with their money to get a higher return.

This, said Nixon, "created unnecessarily severe burdens for the business community and the consuming public."

A main goal of Nixon's banking package, said administration officials Friday, is to guarantee a consistent flow of money into banks and savings and loan associations. This will assure that the financial institutions, in turn, have enough money to make loans and offer home mortgages at reasonable rates even during periods of tight money, they said.

William E. Simon, deputy treasury secretary, said a major goal of the

Deadline is Wednesday

Village offices lack candidates

There are only three days remaining for candidates to file nominating petitions for the Nov. 6 general election, but there are still many positions, especially in Fayette County villages, without candidates, according to Mrs. Mary Jean Jennings, county director of elections.

Mrs. Jennings is urging persons who intend to be candidates to file petitions by the 4 p.m. Wednesday deadline. She also pointed out that write-in votes in the Nov. 6 election will not count unless the person whose name has been written in has filed a declaration of intent to be a write-in candidate 20 days preceding the election.

No one has filed for any of the villages offices. Four village council members are to be elected in each of Milledgeville, Octa, Jeffersonville and Bloomingburg. Treasurers are to be elected in Octa and Jeffersonville, and one member is to be selected to the boards of public affairs in Jeffersonville and Bloomingburg.

Kenneth A. Payton, an incumbent, is the only candidate to file for the County Board of Education. The terms of Dwight I. Duff and Marion Waddle will also expire but neither has filed for reelection.

The two incumbents whose terms expire on the Washington C.H. Board of Education have not filed for reelection. Petitions have been filed by Philip Morrow and Mrs. Robert (Kathryn) Lee. The incumbents whose terms expire are Mark J. Schaeper and Fred L. Domenico.

Billie Wilson is the only incumbent to file for re-election to Washington City Council, however, eight other candidates are seeking the four council seats which will be open. Those who have filed petitions are Fred Rost, Larry D. Bennett, Chester F. Hamulak, Bertha McCullough, William Stolzenburg, Fay Washburn, Joseph Murphy, and George Hall.

Other Councilmen whose terms will expire are Ralph Cook, Hugh S. Patton. The position previously held by John M. Arnold is also to be filled in November. Arnold resigned in February, and council has been operating one person short ever since. Arnold's term would have expired Dec. 31, 1973.

Nominating petitions for township trustee positions have been filed by:

Concord — Robert F. Garland, of Rt. 2, Washington C.H., incumbent. Green — Donald J. Rife and Edward B. Corzatt, both of Rt. 2, Leesburg, incumbents.

Jasper — no filings. Jefferson — Ernest E. Jenks, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, incumbent; J. W. Sears, Rt. 1 South Solon, incumbent, and Ralph Davidson, of Rt. 1, Washington C. H.

Madison — Lawrence E. Grim and Russell D. Lindsey, both of Rt. 1, Mount Sterling, incumbents. Marion — Woodrow Workman and Alvin E. Writsel, both of Rt. 1, New Holland, incumbents.

Paint — No filings. Perry — Marion Cockeril, of Rt. 1 Greenfield, incumbent.

Union Jack Cabbage, Rt. 4, Washington C.H., incumbent; Ronald Campbell, Rt. 4, Washington C.H., and Ray E. Coe, Rt. 4, Washington C.H. Wayne — No filings.

Two trustees are to be elected in each township.

A local option issue will appear on the ballot in Perry Township. Billie L. Haines, Rt. 1, Greenfield, filed petitions Friday to place the issue before the voters. The question is for the sale of spirituous liquor by the glass.

Storms hit broad areas

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Thunderstorms rumbled across broad areas of the nation today after hitting the Western mountains and Plains states with high winds and rain.

In the Southern California deserts, the storms brought locally heavy rains, gusty winds and rapidly rising waters late Friday. A flood warning remained in effect for part of the area.

A few intense storms lashed the Plains states, with more than an inch of rain and 60 mile-an-hour winds reported at Garden City, Kan.

A tornado was sighted south of Holly, Colo., and hail the size of golf balls pounded west-central Minnesota.

In Idaho, the government began disbanding crews fighting two large range fires set by lightning Monday. The fires covered had 69,000 acres before being brought under control Friday.

Scattered thunderstorms also drifted across northern New England, the Middle Atlantic States and southern Florida.

Much of the nation's midsection remained generally cool, but a heat wave continued across the Plateau.

Gilligan to sign lottery measure

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John Gilligan says he will sign "with some real concern" the measure providing for a state lottery.

The concern, he said, stems from lack of a commission he had asked for to study lottery operations before they begin.

Gilligan also said he would sign the bill providing a 25 per cent legislative pay increase.

He also said Ohio will save $1 million through use of new, five-year license plates. The savings will come from the four years in which plates won't have to be issued.

ANTIQUE CARS ARRIVE — Pearl Axbell, of Lancaster, puts the finishing touches of his 1914 Ford entered in the Model T competition of the Old Fashioned Bargain Days Antique Car Show, under the watchful eye of a youthful sidewalk superintendent. Dozens of cars, representing 31 classes, line Main Street from Temple to East Street, and on the sidewalk, along the Courthouse, traders and sellers display repair manuals and tables of antique parts.

Car show closes bargain event

An antique car show and costume judging will provide the grand finale today for Old Fashioned Bargain Days, which have brought thousands of shoppers to Washington C.H.

Exhibitors of antique and classic cars began registering at 9 a.m. today, and judging of scores of entries was scheduled for the afternoon. The 31-class show is being held on Main Street.

The costume judging will take place at 4:30 p.m. on the Courthouse lawn. Store employees having the best old fashioned costumes will receive cash awards.

Sidewalk sales will continue until 9 p.m. Other activities today include the Shrine Club's beef barbecue, and the book fair sponsored by the American Association of University Women.

The News In Brief

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (AP) — A teen-age boy with a bluepainted scar on his face was being hunted across the Isle of Man today after police said a fun palace fire that resulted in about 50 deaths probably was caused by arson.

HONOLULU (AP) — Sen. Daniel K. Inouye says he is not certain whether he called former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman a liar or a lawyer.

The Hawaiian Democrat was reported to have commented over an open microphone, "What a liar," just after Ehrlichman testified before the Senate Watergate investigating committee last week.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Police gunfire killed a Mohawk man late Friday night after he had apparently shot and killed his 67-year-old sister at an Over-The-Rhine apartment.

The victims were identified by police as Bill Lay, 55, and his sister Carrie Howell. Police said she was shot during a family quarrel.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Outstanding consumer credit increased $2.06 billion in June with the largest increase in the area of non-installment loans such as charge accounts, the government says.

WASHINGTON (AP) — An FBI informer may have pulled the trigger that set off a fusillade killing four Kent State University students in 1970, Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., says.

In a letter to Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, Bayh said that the possibility was raised in letters sent to him by three Ohio National Guardsmen.

The three were in a skirmish line that fired a 13-second burst of bullets into a group of students demonstrating against President Nixon's decision to send troops into Cambodia. Nine other students were wounded in the May 4, 1970 incident on the Kent State campus.

Bayh inserted the letters into the Congressional Record Friday, the same day Richardson announced the Justice Department was reopening its investigation into the deaths.

Richardson said he wants "to make

WCH man arrested in grocery holdup

City police are holding Alton Kaylor, 42, of 330 N. Fayette St., in the city jail today in connection with the Friday night armed robbery of Bobo's Grocery and Carryout, 510 W. Oakland Ave.

Police said the holdup took place about 10:30 p.m. Mrs. Rosalie Bobo, working in the store at the time of the robbery, told police a man came in and asked for a can of beer. When she placed it on the counter, he drew a gun, told her to keep calm and walked behind the counter to the cash register.

Mrs. Bobo said she opened the cash register, from which the robber took more than $100 in cash. He also took a box containing about 30 cartons of cigarettes, valued at $110, and his beer. He told Mrs. Bobo to lie on the floor for five minutes and left the store.

Police spotted a car that fit the description given them a short time later, and arrested Kaylor.

A SHOHO STATION on Ohio 38 at I-71 was broken into between 12:30 and 4:25 a.m. Saturday, according to the Fayette County Sheriff's Department. The burglar forced an overhead garage door open to gain entry to the station, then pried into the cigarette and coffee vending machines. The amount of money taken and a list of other items taken were not completely determined Saturday morning.

Tim Pierce, 510 High St., told police his mini-bike was taken from his garage Friday. The bike was found wrecked along the nearby DT&I railroad tracks soon thereafter. A 10-year-old boy was implicated by police in the theft.

Russell Wood, 604 Gregg St., told police his bicycle was taken from its parking spot at Marting Manufacturing Co., 809 Delaware St., sometime Friday morning.

The sheriff's office also received a vandalism report from Ralph Wilt, Sabina. Wilt told the Sheriff's Department that a window in a house trailer owned by his brother, Grant Wilt, Columbus, was broken and the trailer was ransacked sometime after July 25. Nothing was found missing from the trailer, located at Jenks Road and I-71.

Demo reforms must be kept, group believes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic party reformers have unveiled a two-step strategy to block revision of the controversial 1972 delegate selection guidelines.

At a news conference Friday, leaders of the liberal Americans for Democratic Action proposed retention of the controversial guidelines and urged they be applied to all of state and local party committees.

At the same time, they accused former advocates of the changes, including National Chairman Robert S. Strauss and Sen. George McGovern, of indifference to the effort to making the party more open.

"There are some people in the party who don't seem to care very much if the doors of this party are open," said Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., the national chairman of ADA.

Fraser, who succeeded McGovern as chairman of the commission that wrote the 1972 reform rules, was joined at the press conference by Washington attorney Joseph L. Rauh, long active in party reform causes, and Mrs. Anne Wexler of Connecticut, who played a major role in writing the 1972 reforms.

Rauh conceded that one reason for urging extension of the reforms is to help fight the move to dilute them.

Chilean cabinet quits en masse

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Salvador Allende meets today with his advisers to consider his cabinet's resignation, a move taken to give him a free hand to deal with a massive transportation strike.

His 15 ministers handed in their resignations Friday night during a meeting with Allende over the strike by nearly all owners of trucks, buses and taxis. Their action was intended to give the Marxist president flexibility, including the ability to bring the military into the cabinet.

At first, the president's office said Allende flatly rejected the resignations. But a high official within Allende's popular unity coalition said later that the president decided to put off a decision until Monday or Tuesday.

Pay measure being held from Nixon

Farm, highway, wage bills pass; Congress adjourns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress began a month-long recess today after sending President Nixon major farm and highway bills to sign and receiving from him a pledge to stop bombing Cambodia on Aug. 15, as Congress has demanded.

Another bill passed in the last-minute legislative flurry would raise the minimum wage to $2.20 in two steps, but it won't be sent to the White House for several weeks.

Congress expects Nixon to veto the bill and is not going to give him the opportunity to do so until after it returns to Washington on Sept. 5.

The three big bills passed by the House and Senate in a busy day of desk-clearing for the annual summer vacation were compromise versions of separate bills each body had passed earlier.

The farm bill inaugurates a new "target price" concept for computing price supports for wheat, cotton and corn under which payments would be made only when the market price drops below the target price. Currently the market prices are higher.

The bill also would limit payments to farmers to $20,000 a year, instead of $55,000 per crop each year as at present.

The House passed the bill 252-151, blocking a Republican effort to attach an amendment that would have barred strikers from receiving food stamps. It then sailed through the Senate on a voice vote.

The highway bill, given an overwhelming 382-34 vote on final passage in the House, would open up the highway trust fund for the first time for mass transit purposes.

No money could be taken from the trust fund for mass transit during this fiscal year. But starting July 1, 1974, $200 million would be available to help cities buy buses and a year later $800 million would be earmarked for buses, rail transit systems and urban highways.

The bill's manager, Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., held up final action on it until he received assurances from Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar that Nixon would sign it.

No such assurances could be given on the minimum wage bill by Labor Secretary Peter Brennan, although he said he would urge Nixon to sign it. However, several Republican senators and representatives said they expect a veto.

The bill, passed by the House 253-152, would increase the minimum wage from $1.80 to $2 two months after enactment, and to $2.20 on July 1, 1974. It would also cover 7 million additional workers, including state and local government employees and domestics.

The administration objects to the rapid increase to $2.20, to the new coverage, and to the failure of Congress to allow a lower minimum for teenage workers.

By not sending the bill to the White House until the end of this month,

Congress will prevent Nixon from pocket vetoing it, which is the term for killing a bill when Congress is out of session by simply declining to sign it.

Douglas orders bombing halt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas today ordered a halt to the bombing of Cambodia.

Douglas' action gives force to a lower court order which had decreed that the bombing stop on July 27. The U.S. Circuit Court in New York had blocked the effect of that order by issuing a stay.

Today, Douglas lifted that stay, allowing the lower court ban to become effective.

"The merits of the present controversy are ... to say the least, substantial, since denial of the application before me would catapult our airmen as well as Cambodian peasants into the death zone," Douglas wrote.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says Congress will have to take the blame for whatever fate might befall Cambodia after the administration halts all U.S. bombing in less than two weeks.

Nixon accused Congress Friday of "abandonment of a friend" by cutting off U.S. bombing and undermining his efforts to negotiate a ceasefire there.

Nixon made his statements in a letter. At the same time, administration officials said only unarmed reconnaissance and delivery flights would be made after the Aug. 14 cutoff date.

Skylab capsule may work OK

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Space agency officials have expressed guarded confidence that the Apollo taxi ship of the Skylab 2 crew can bring the astronauts safely home after 59 days in orbit, thus avoiding a rescue mission.

Engineering detective work continued in an effort to pinpoint what caused two Apollo jet engines to spring leaks. If the problem is not understood thoroughly, a rescue ship might have to be launched about Sept. 10 to retrieve the three astronauts.

But if another jet engine fails or the laboratory has a major problem in the meantime, Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma would make a quick trip home in their Apollo, officials said Friday.

"We're planning to launch the next in line vehicle down at Cape Kennedy for a fundamentally unaltered Skylab 3 mission," explained Skylab Director William C. Schneider. "We're taking the prudent steps that would permit us to convert that to a rescue vehicle if such an event becomes necessary."

Bean, Garriott and Lousma remained safe and calm in their orbiting laboratory, pursuing their heavy experiment schedule as if nothing were wrong.

Throughout the day Friday they made no mention of the problem with the Apollo ship.

In fact, with their motion sickness cured, they seemed to be enjoying themselves.

During a 15-minute telecast beamed to Mission Control, Garriott pointed the camera to show the United States below and commented, "As you can see, we go along at a fast clip—around the world in 93 minutes and across the United States in almost the blink of an eye."

Garriott, a solar physicist, planned a long session today studying the sun with a battery of telescopes. Bean and Lousma were to aim earth resources sensors and cameras at a 9,000-mile stretch of earth from the northwest coast of the United States, across the mountain states, Texas, the Gulf of Mexico and northern South America.

Mission Control also gave Garriott and Lousma a go-ahead to take a space walk Monday to erect a second sunshade to help cool the laboratory and to replace telescope camera film.

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — L. Patrick Gray III, loyal follower of President Nixon, says he was used.

Gray told the Senate Watergate committee Friday of his shame and downfall as acting FBI director, a post he quit April 27 when it was made public that he destroyed papers from the White House safe of wiretapper E. Howard Hunt.

Gray read slowly from a 51-page statement, speaking in a near monotone, showing little outward sign of emotion.

Adding a few new details, he said he burned the papers with some Christmas wrappings at his home in Stonington, Conn., last December.

He said he believed he was acting on orders of White House aides John W. Dean and John D. Ehrlichman. He said they gave him two sets of papers June 28, 1972 and told him they were political dynamite that should never see the light of day.

He said he read one of the papers before he burned them. It was a State Department cable implicating President Kennedy in the slaying of South Vietnamese President Diem in 1963. Gray said it shook him. He didn't realize then that the cables were fake, forged by Hunt in an unsuccessful attempt to plant a false, anti-Kennedy story with a magazine reporter.

Gray said he lied to Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen, who asked him about the Hunt papers last April 16 after Dean spilled the story to prosecutors.

"I slept little, if any, that night," Gray said. The next day he sought out Petersen and told him the truth, he said.

Nine days later, the story still unknown to the public, Gray said he telephoned his friend Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, who is a fellow Connecticut Republican and a member of the Watergate committee.

"For a week I had thought about this matter and of Sen. Weicker's staunch and valiant support of me and his warm friendship," Gray said. "I had a duty to tell him of these two files, yet my shame was so deep that it was hard to pick up the phone and call."

When he did tell Weicker, he lied about small details. He said he hadn't read the papers. He said he destroyed them soon after Dean and Ehrlichman gave them to him, rather than months later. He said he put them in an official FBI "burn bag" for destruction, rather than casually tossing them in the flames at home with the Christmas ribbons.

"I really cannot explain why I failed to tell Sen. Weicker all the facts at this time, and made misstatements to him," Gray said. "A sense of shame is all I can remember. I suppose I felt, in some irrational way, that I would look better in his eyes if I had destroyed them promptly and never looked at them."

Weicker gave the somewhat garbled story to newspapers the next day, forcing Gray's resignation and ending his agony. The Senate had refused to confirm him as permanent FBI director, and the White House had not withdrawn the nomination. Gray was left, as Ehrlichman put it in a bit of gallows poetry, to "hang there and twist slowly, slowly in the wind."

Gray said he hadn't known of "Mr. Ehrlichman's elegant phrase" until the Senate committee released it in the transcript of conversation between Ehrlichman and Dean.

Until he lied to Petersen, Gray said, "I believed that I was acting faithfully, loyally, properly and legally pursuant to instructions given me by top assistants to the President of the United States."

He said he now realized that his burning the papers was "a grievous misjudgment."

Gray, who quit a 20-year naval career to join Nixon's 1960 presidential campaign, said he was "a man of honor" (Please turn to Page 7)

Students attend Youth School

Steve Paisley, David Ritenour and Cindy Davis of Fayette County were three of the 117 persons who attended Youth School held at Otterbein College last week.

The summer conference provided the young people with a working knowledge of the democratic procedure used in developing policy of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

The program included group discussion which were aimed toward teaching the youth how state government operates. There was a mock house of representatives with simulated bills moving through the committees and the legislature to become final laws.

The participants formed a mock

Farm Bureau. They used the various committees of Farm Bureau such as Public Affairs and Womens, Farm Bureau Board, and Landmark Cooperative Board to simulate the policy making process of the Farm Bureau.

The training conference which is one of five held in the state this summer, also featured classes in group singing, group recreation, adventures in good music, public speaking, manners, youth driver safety, square dance calling, and the organization of co-ops.

Cindy Davis and Steve Paisley were members of the Co-op Board with Cindy being elected president. David Ritenour was an advisory council member.

Weather damages soybeans

COLUMBUS — Recent weather conditions have left soybean fields in many areas with shredded leaves on most plants.

According to B.D. Blair, Extension entomologist at Ohio State University, growers should be sure if the damage to leaves was caused by recent storms or if insects are to blame before hauling out the insecticides.

Some green cloverworm activity has been reported in northwestern Ohio. Japanese beetles have been reported in large numbers in one field in southern Ohio. Blair says soybeans can lose a considerable portion of the leaf surface before bloom before insect control is justified. A "ball park figure" is 40 per cent of the foliage lost before controls are needed.

Blair is fielding such questions as "Can we control pests by aerial application of an insecticide?" In field and forage crop areas, the answer in most instances is yes, he says. However, better control may be obtained with some pests where the insecticide is concentrated in the row area. And, row applications require less insecticide in some instances than broadcast applications, he insists.

Aerial equipment is available throughout the state, can cover large acres, quickly, and is competitive with ground equipment in many instances. So, aerial applications for control of some insects can be effective, but proper distribution of the insecticides is essential. Wind velocity, altitude, location of the field in relation to obstructions, atmospheric conditions, and many other factors influence the results. The highly toxic nature of some compounds requires that aerial application of these materials be done only by and for persons willing to assume full responsibility for the consequences of drift onto non target objects and areas such as human beings, livestock, apiaries, susceptible crops, schools, homes, pastures, reservoirs, and streams, cautions Blair.

Application should be made at the lowest height compatible with effective dispersal and aerial safety and only when atmospheric conditions are such that drift of released material from the target field is minimal.

In 1972, the U.S. Department of Agriculture spent $3.47 billion on programs for food distribution, food stamps, child nutrition and school milk. This was nearly one-third of the entire USDA budget.

Clover worms seen in soybeans

By John Gruber
County Extension Agent, Agriculture
Green Clover Worms Working in Soybeans

If you haven't checked your soybean fields lately you might be surprised at what you find.

Green clover worms have been eating leaves in soybean fields on several farms in Fayette County during the last week. So far I have found the worms in about 20 soybean fields in Jefferson, Jasper and Union Townships.

Fortunately the worms are not at high enough populations to warrant chemical control. However, if you haven't checked your soybean fields lately I suggest you do so soon. If you have green clover worms in your soybeans you will want to keep an eye on feeding damage and the rate it is progressing.

Research has shown that when soybean leaves have been removed by hand during bloom stage, it takes about 25 per cent foliar loss to significantly decrease yields.

Green clover worms seem to be present in several counties in southern Ohio. One farmer in Scioto County was ready to spray but decided to check the field one more time. He reported that the plants appeared to be "growing out of it" and that many of the worms were dead.

I've found the same thing in some local fields. There are natural controls that may take care of the problem. The problem that exists if you do spray is that it may result in a spider mite problem which could be worse than the worms two or three weeks from now.

Mount Sterling entry wins in Buckeye Beef Show

A pen of three steers exhibited by John Brown of Mount Sterling entered in the carcass grading of the Buckeye Beef Show held at the Ohio Expositions Center was judged the champion pen of three.

A 920-pound steer of Limousin and Angus breeding became the grand champion of the carcass contest. The steer was exhibited by Fred Molitor of Fayetteville and purchased by E.J. Demmitt of Troy.

The reserve champion steer of the carcass contest was a 1,240-pound Charolais shown by Bob Stacey of Arlington.

Carcass judges were Vern Cahill, professor of animal science at Ohio State University and Dick Falter of Village Packing Co., Columbus.

Prior to the carcass contest, the cattle were judged alive. This activity took place at the Ohio Expositions Center on July 9 and was followed by a sale of the live cattle.

Judges of the live show were Dick Falter and Herman Purdy, professor emeritus, Pennsylvania State University.

During the live show, an 1,185-pound steer of Charolais and Hereford breeding was judged champion. He was exhibited by Fred Miller of Lebanon.

The reserve champion of the live show was a 1,230-pound steer of Charolais and Hereford breeding. He was exhibited by John Meister of Bucyrus.

"This was an especially trim set of cattle. They were not wasty and had good cutability," remarked Vern Cahill.

The grand champion exemplifies this kind of carcass, Cahill pointed out. He had a 595-pound carcass, a rib eye area of 15.3 square inches, a fat thickness of only 1/4 inch, a cutability of 54.6 per cent, a yield grade of 1, a marbling score of 5, kidney fat of only 2.5 per cent, and he graded low choice.

The grand champion of the live show, entered in the heavy weight class, did not place in the carcass contest because he didn't quite make choice grade. His carcass lacked sufficient marbling to be considered choice. The heavy weight carcass winner was a steer of Charolais and Angus breeding shown by Nevin Smith of Bellefontaine.

The performance class was topped by the reserve champion of the carcass show, the 1,240-pound Charolais shown by Stacey. In this class, the rate of gain is taken into account along with other performance factors. The Stacey steer gained 2.45 pounds per day of age while growing to a low choice grade with a 16.2 square inch rib eye, three-tenths of an inch of back fat, a cutability of 52.6, a yield grade of 1.9 and a marbling score of 5.

Browns three Angus cattle ranged in weight from 900 to 990 pounds and ranged in grade from low to high choice. The pen of three judged in first place during the live show was Charolais-Hereford cattle ranging in weight from 1,170 to 1,240 pounds. They were shown by David Grube of Croton. The heavier steer in this pen failed to make choice grade, which disqualified the entry in the carcass test.

The Buckeye Beef Show is sponsored each year by the Ohio Cattlemen's Association and the Cooperative Extension Service of Ohio State University. Randall Reed, Extension animal science specialist, is general chairman of the event, and Bob Van-Stavern, Extension meat specialist, is superintendent of the carcass show.

Slaughtering operations closing doors statewide

The closing of meat slaughtering establishments, especially those killing only hogs or chickens, has greatly affected the quantity of meat available to Ohio consumers, according to Ohio Director of Agriculture Gene R. Abercrombie.

The Agriculture Department's Division of Meat Inspection licenses and inspects all Ohio slaughtering establishments which supply their meat to Ohio retail outlets. During the past two days a departmental survey conducted statewide has pointed out three general conditions which are present in the industry today.

"The slaughter of hogs in Ohio inspected establishments is very much reduced from a few months ago," Abercrombie said. "Many of our poultry plants would like to continue at their normal kill rate, but they have been forced to reduce their volume because of severe lack of birds."

Abercrombie also stated that the custom slaughter and processing operations are generally not reduced, in fact they may have increased their output slightly.

In summarizing the survey results, Abercrombie listed four establishments as completely closed, and two dozen more with an extreme reduction in hog and chicken kill.

"Our field staff have been bombarded with rumors and statements of all kinds," the Director continued, "but if the current economic situation of Phase III is not ended within the next week or sooner, the list of closed plants could be increased tenfold, and the supply of meat to Ohioans will be so small that prices could double, especially for pork and chicken."

"It wasn't the farmers or the meat

packers who asked for price controls," he concluded. "When the consumer trusted the federal government and asked for lower prices, the government stepped in and created a monster of the meat market. Now it will take months before any reasonable solution will come about, and prices will go up many times before they come back down."

New soil map now available

A revised map of Ohio's soil regions, published by the division of lands and soil of the Department of Natural Resources, is now available to the public.

The multi-colored map shows the locations of Ohio's seven major soil regions. A text of the reverse side of the map describes the various soil associations within each of the seven major regions. The descriptions give the names and distinguishing features of the more common soils.

The information provided will be useful to educators, farmers, and construction and recreation planning groups.

This is the third revised edition of the map which was first printed in 1954.

Single copies of the map can be obtained free of charge by contacting the Division of Lands and Soil, Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Columbus, Ohio 43224.

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Farmers in rural West Virginia and in neighboring southeastern Ohio have been warned to expect increasing mischief from cattle rustlers. Some farmers have already adopted new security measures.

In Lawrence and Scioto counties, Ohio, cattle owners have formed a protective association to guard against increases in rustling expected to accompany the national beef shortage.

Feed full-energy, local soybean meal

Now you can make the fullest use of your valuable soybean meal. Research by leading universities, independent laboratories and the U.S.D.A. has proven the feeding and profit benefits of full-energy soybean meal. Brady now offers the efficient means to produce local, full-energy meal with the new 206 Crop Cooker. Look at what the portable, PTO powered, multi-use crop cooker can do for you:

- Produce up to and exceeding 2000 pounds of full-energy meal per hour.
- Extrusion process heat destroys bean growth inhibitor, retains rich oil in the meal.
- Use without changing existing storage facilities.
- Full-energy soybean meal lowers livestock feeding costs, improves profits.
- Full-energy soybean meal improves livestock maintenance, growth, reproduction, lactation and hair loss prevention.
- Full-energy soybean meal stays fresh.

'Optimum profile' to save gas

Hughes Air West has made an interesting announcement about a plan to save fuel. Henceforth, we are told, computation of about 100 factors will provide an "optimum flight profile" for each jet's flight. It is estimated that this will save perhaps as much as three million gallons of aviation fuel per year.

'The web of trust'

Any bureaucracy tends to accumulate a few characters who specialize as royal chamberlains. University presidents, business executives, and of course political leaders always have a faithful "special assistant" (or maybe several) who tell him what a great man he is, listen to his complaints about the unkind world, and in general play therapist.

I have nothing in general against these folks; indeed, a number of them (like Jack Kennedy's buddy Dave Powers) are great characters. But there is another specimen of the breed: the friend and therapist who decides to go in business for himself. Who in President Johnson's phrase "plays President."

It is hard to keep an exact count, but a horseback guess suggests that President Nixon must have had on the order of 15 pseudo-presidents. Their function, as they defined it, was to "protect" the President, which in practice was to isolate him.

A call from one of them to a member of the bureaucracy was simply taken at face value as a Presidential communication (except be it noted by J. Edgar Hoover, whose ego required that he deal with the landlord, not the janitor).

If Ehrlichman called a White House staffer and suggested that the President wanted him to jump off the Washington Monument, one has the eerie feeling that the staffer would mournfully have set out across the Mall.

WATCHING this hermetically sealed White House come apart has reminded me of an episode in the Johnson years. The facts are essentially correct, though no names have been used in order to protect the guilty. It all began when the President made a most in-temperate speech in defense of his foreign policy.

One of his top aides went from the speech to his office and wrote Johnson a memo. It was a blockbuster, suggesting — courteously but starkly — that the President would pick up 10 enemies for every friend with such tactics. It went into the night-reading pile in the Mansion.

The next morning another aide, who was momentarily royal chamberlain, sided into my colleague's (let's call him Q) office and, after a good bit of hissing and thatting, indicated that the President thought Q would make an excellent chairman of, say, the Federal

The average motorist has no means of providing himself with an optimum profile for auto trips.

There is a parallel, all the same; there is a common denominator in cross-country jet flights and travel by car out on the highway or even just around town.

Deposit Insurance Corp. Q observed that this seemed a bit odd: he hadn't heard a word on the subject from Johnson. The visitor said that, after that memo, it would be a miracle if Q even got a Christmas card. He'd be smart to grab the FDIC before the President changed his mind . . . and sidled out.

Q picked up the phone, pushed the "POTUS" (President of the U.S.; direct line) button and shortly got the President. "Mr. President," he said, coldly, "if you want to fire me, that's okay — it's your government — but don't send a messenger. Just tell me yourself and I'll be out of here in half an hour."

There was complete silence for a minute and then Johnson asked: "What in God's name makes you think I want to fire you? I need you, you're one of the few people around here that tells it to me with the bark off." Q indicated that he had been told he was prime candidate for the FDIC, but LBJ

The "optimum flight profile" is a tool for making the most of a jet's fuel. Car owners can do somewhat the same thing by keeping their engines tuned, driving at optimum speeds, avoiding jackrabbit acceleration, and so on. Experts say such steps can bring respectable gas savings. It's worth a try.

told him to relax: "I'm still the only President in this building."

AS Q AND I reconstructed it later, we figured that Johnson had gone up to the bedroom with the royal chamberlain, picked up Q's memo, and blown his stack. (A striking event resembling an earthquake.) He had probably discussed Q's ancestors, said he was doubtless "deserting to Bobby," and left the distinct impression that the sooner Q was out of the building, the better.

"I oughter put him on the FDIC or Civil Defense Director on Guam," would have been a plausible sign-off line.

The royal chamberlain filed all this away, checked and discovered there was an FDIC vacancy (but that Guam was covered), and then took off on his mission to "protect" the President. But in those days there was no way to protect the President from talking to his staff; he answered the phone.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

The article, "Trash must be at curbside starting here on Sept. 1," on page 12 of last Saturday's Record Herald, must have missed the attention of a lot of people in the older sections of the city where alley refuse storage and pickup has been customary.

Maybe, like some of the other changes, many people think that it's something we'll have to accept and make the best of but I don't think so. The proper authority to deal with this problem has made no statement.

If I am not mistaken, our City Council has much more power to regulate and control the collection and disposal of garbage and refuse and the carriers who perform these services than has been manifest thus far. This is not the ordinary type of bread man, milk man, take-it-or-leave-it service. Trash and refuse collection is a quasi-utility, a service that involves the health, safety and welfare of the citizens.

Here, we have one or two major operators and perhaps some with just a few customers who are telling us and our city government that "... according to an agreement by local refuse collectors", certain radical changes will be made in their services. So, I suppose we should salaam and say "anything goes as long as you don't miss me". Hogwash!

These fellows haven't stayed in business all these years just to be of service to the community. Surely, they have their problems but they also operate a profitable business which they want to continue. When people who perform a service tell you what their change will be that's one thing, but when they tell you what you must first do, and what you must sacrifice, in order to avail yourself of their part of the bargain, then they are no longer performing a service they are levying a tax.

So, what do we do? For those who have them, the alleys are still the most inconspicuous and sensible place to collect and store garbage and refuse from one pickup to the next.

Think about it. How many people in the older sections of town, where lots are long and narrow, take something out to the container one or more times a day. Now, of those people, how many are able or really willing to move it all out to the street just to accommodate the hauler?

I may be able, but I'm not willing. I am willing to and have been paying a reasonable fee to have this service performed. I have a lot of trash and will have more, but I'm not about to enter into a cooperative venture with the garbage collector. If I'm going to be in that business I'll get my own truck. Of course, I may have to hunt a new dumping ground because the present one is leased, I believe.

Another thing, where traffic gets congested, on Paint Street for example where I live, and the garbage truck is starting and stopping at every house or so, then traffic becomes obstructed waiting for an oncoming car whose driver doesn't see that one of the loaders is about to dart out from behind the truck to go across the street, what will Council do about that traffic problem? Ban parking on one or both sides, I suppose. Then the collector can amble down along the curb. Is the garbage juice and grease that leaks out of those trucks more acceptable on the paved streets or in the graveled alleys?

With all due respect to Sabina, Jamestown and Mount Sterling, they are villages whose combined population is listed at less than 5,400. Why should their operation be a criteria for a city of 12,500?

But as long as villages have been mentioned, I can say that I was mayor of Williamsport for about five years before I moved here. We had the services of a regularly equipped refuse collector who operated out of Chillicothe. His route, his rates and his services were regulated and sanctioned by Council. He was serving our citizens on their streets and alleys and we felt that as a local self-governing body, it was within the power of the Mayor and Council and that we had the duty to properly regulate and control this operation. He thought so too because he was being strictly regulated by the City of Chillicothe.

It may be a long time before the City can abandon all the alleys and their maintenance, if ever. So let's not let their use be limited so that it can later be said "very little can be spent in maintaining them because they are not being used".

Queen suggests swan birth control

OTTAWA (AP) — A birth control suggestion for controlling the royal swan population in Ottawa was slipped to Mayor Pierre Benoit by Queen Elizabeth II at a civic luncheon here. The mayor told newsmen following the luncheon on Wednesday that the rapid growth in the swan population came up during a chat he had with the Queen.

Benoit said he told the Queen that the original 12 swans she had given the city in 1967 on Canada's centennial had grown to 50 and the city was puzzled about how to curb the population increase.

The Queen suggested that only two eggs be left in each nest, keeping the population down, he said.

"It's a simple solution to the problem," said the mayor smiling.

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Living arrangements are a family decision

DEAR ABBY: Our brother is 21. He just graduated from college, and has a job that pays $100 a week. Brother wants to live at home with our parents. They think it will teach Brother a sense of responsibility if he pays them $75 a month for his room and board.

We don't think children should have to pay to live with someone they love. Our whole family would like to know how you feel about this.

THE OTHER KIDS

DEAR KIDS: How long should an able-bodied, gainfully employed 21-year-old ex-pect to live with Mama and Papa for free? Six months? A year? Forever? Circumstances and opinions differ in all families, however, reasonable people should be able to agree to terms that will satisfy both the lover and the loves.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 20-year-old girl, living alone. I date a guy who is 20 and lives at home. He called and some relatives had come in from out of town and wanted to stay all night, but they were short of room at his house so he told his mother he would sleep at a friend's house. Well, the "friend" happened to be me.

When he asked if he could sleep here, I said: "Sure," thinking I'd put him up on the sofa. When it became apparent that he thought he was going to share my bed, I said: "Nothing doing."

He said I was "undersexed" and I threw him out of the house. He hasn't called me since.

Am I undersexed?

LINDA

DEAR LINDA: No. He's over optimistic.

DEAR ABBY: A mother wrote that her daughter wanted to be married in the park by a justice of the peace. She says her daughter doesn't believe in anything, and neither does the young man. Your answer was absolutely right. A civil ceremony is the only appropriate one.

What puzzles so many of the clergy today is why so many people completely ignore the church, but when it comes to being married and buried, they want a minister.

I am a retired Episcopal priest and admit that I have officiated at many such weddings and funerals, but I am still not sure whether I was showing Christian charity or moral cowardice by doing so.

EPISCOPALIAN PRIEST

DEAR PRIEST: I would be inclined to say you showed Christian cahrity.

DEAR ABBY: You had a phrase in your column which fits me to a "T." People who are "terrific in bed, but lousy otherwise."

My husband picked me up on a street corner. I was 18, and looking for adventure. He had just been discharged from the Army after three years in Europe, and was looking for some excitement. We didn't waste much time getting to know each other. I was amazed at his virility, and he was flattered by my honest need for him.

To make a long story short, we were married, but because I was such a pushover from the beginning, he never really trusted me out of his sight.

Thank heavens we would afford domestic help, because I was the world's worst cook. My talent was in the bedroom. After 27 years, it still is.

My husband is afraid if he loses his virility, I'll leave him for a younger man, and I'm afraid when his sexual appetite tapers off, he won't want me anymore because that's all I'm good for.

So, take it from a woman whose only talent is in the bedroom. It's not enough.

Ohio Power talks broken

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — No new negotiations are scheduled between the Ohio Power Co. and 1,000 striking utility workers after a bargaining session Friday resulted in no progress.

The talks were the latest attempt to end more than a month-old strike at six company plants.

The dispute reportedly involves wages and fringe benefits.

Separate talks are scheduled to resume Wednesday between Utility Workers of America at facilities in Canton, Tiffin and Lima.

Talks broke off between the firm and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers employed at facilities in Newark, Steubenville and Zanesville.

No injuries listed in 3 auto mishaps

Two traffic accidents and a hitskip in which a garage was damaged were investigated by police and sheriff's departments Friday. There were no injuries or citations.

POLICE
FRIDAY — A garage at the rear of 711 S. North St. incurred about $75 worth of damage in an apparent hit-and-run incident. The damage occurred sometime in the past three days. Mrs. Nelle Fogle owns the garage.

FRIDAY, 10 p.m. — A car driven by Jessie A. Frisbie Jr., 39, Mount Sterling, and a pickup truck driven by Sharon J. Funk, 24, New Holland, collided on CCC Highway-N, just north of Fayette Memorial Hospital. Frisbie tried to pass the truck on the left as it started a left turn, and they collided, police said. The right side of Frisbie's car was heavily damaged. The truck's left front fender and bumper were damaged.

SHERIFF
FRIDAY, 7:55 p.m. — Cars driven by Denise A. Fitzpatrick, 17, Sabina, and Brent A. Stewart, 20, London, collided on U.S. 22, 1.7 miles southwest of Washington C.H. Stewart stated a left turn and collided with the Fitzpatrick car, which was trying to pass in the left lane. The right side of the Fitzpatrick car and the left side and front end of the Stewart car were damaged.

Ohio Youth Choir to give concert at Sugarloaf Monday

CHILLICOTHE — The All-Ohio Youth Choir will present a concert of folk songs, favorite hymns and currently popular show tunes at 8 p.m. Monday, in Sugarloaf Mountain Amphitheatre.

A week later, at 8:45 p.m. Monday, Aug. 13, the Ohio Valley Summer Theater's production of "Sing Out, Sweet Land", a one-act musical, will be presented.

Sugarloaf Mountain Amphitheatre is the home of "Tecumseh!", outdoor historical drama playing nightly except Mondays through Sept. 2.

The All-Ohio Youth Choir, which includes 140 voices, is the touring contingent of a 300-member group which is the world's largest all-youth, four-part choir.

Directed by Glenville Davies Thomas, this musical group has won recognition in the United States and abroad. The Youth Choir has appeared on national television and has entertained at the White House.

The choir has just returned from its tenth annual tour of European countries, from June 25 to July 18.

Youth Choir members are from 16 to 19 years of age, representing all 88 Ohio counties. Choir members are chosen annually at the Ohio Junior Fair, a major division of the Ohio State Fair. Some 30,000 youths participate in Junior Fair competitions, including selection for the All-Ohio Youth Choir.

Personnel items to top agenda for county board

Personnel matters will top a heavy agenda for members of the Fayette County Board of Education at the regular semi-monthly meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Jeffersonville Elementary School.

Superintendent Guy M. Foster said board members will consider the employment of seven new teachers, one teacher's resignation in addition to hiring personnel for the Title I reading program, a head teacher for the Adult Basic Education program, a lunchroom supervisor, a bus mechanic and school bus drivers.

The board will also review the high school dress code, appoint a high school faculty manager, establish a tuition rate for the Miami Trace School District as well as hearing tuition requests for the 1973-74 school year and consider the transfer of students.

Firemen fight garage blaze

City firemen extinguished a garage blaze at the Ray Foster residence, 1020 Bloomingburg-New Holland Road, Friday night.

The Fire Department said the fire was started when gasoline fumes were ignited in the garage. Firemen said Foster was making yard torches with cattails dipped in gasoline and kerosene, and that one of them burning near the garage ignited the fumes.

Damage was estimated at about $200 or $300. It was confined to plastic containers and other articles in the garage. Firemen were on the scene 37 minutes.

Bob Evans on council

Students present recital

Piano students of Mrs. Frank Creamer were presented in a recital at her home on the Washington-Waterloo Rd. Those participating in the program and their selections were:

Michelle Ford: a group of hymns arranged for duet with Mrs. Creamer playing the second part, "Grandfather's Clock" — Florence Maxim and "Bike Hike" — John W. Schaum.

Roger Lovett: "Old McDonald"; "Chief Thundercloud"; and "Chicks" (from John Schaums Junior Animal Circus), also a duet with Mrs. Creamer playing the second part.

Wendy Hidy: "Overture" and "A Witch Within That Wood Doth Dwell" from Hansel and Gretel, adapted from the opera by Engelbert Hupferdick; "The Bag Piper;" and "Fiddler on the Roof;" "Matchmaker" and "If I Were a Rich Man" from the movie "Fiddler on the Roof."

Marilyn Creamer: "Sarabande",

"Aria," and "Gigue" all by Jack Butler.

To close the program, Mrs. Sears played a charming arrangement of "Chopsticks" by Thompson.

Tempting refreshments of ice cream cake roll and punch with floating strawberries were served to the guests with Mrs. Sears presiding at the punch bowl. The tea table was centered with a large hand crocheted doily made by the hostess' grandmother and a silver bowl filled with an old-fashioned arrangement of garden flowers. Nuts and mints were served from silver compotes.

Footloose . . .

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

"I'd like to be a general practitioner in a small town," said Lisa Young. "People need a plain old doctor. I'd make house calls and I'd like to build a clinic, too. I'll do it, build that clinic, in six years!"

It sounds like high-flown talk coming from a fresh-faced 19-year-old who's going into her junior year at Augsburg College, Minneapolis, but when Lisa says something, you can figure she means business. She's already a woman of accomplishment.

A student whose academic average is 4 on a scale of 4, Lisa is putting herself through college by working as a nursing assistant at a hospital.

"I started out as a janitor," she said with a grin, "just so I could work in a national and international projects.

Walks have helped fund educational activities, farm co-ops and day care centers. They've provided scholarships, food and medical supplies, farm equipment, job training, legal advice and emergency assistance for Indians, migrant farm workers, and victims of poverty in inner city and rural areas of the United States.

Hands Across the Sea
"Abroad," said Lisa, "we've a lot of projects going, too. For example, our money has been used to organize a food depot and nutrition program in Zambia, and we've funded schools in Tanzania, model homes and training schools in Guatemala. The list is endless."

This summer, the Foundation is sponsoring a meeting with the Winnebago Nation in northern Nebraska on August 24, 25 and 26.

"We hope that upwards of 1,000 young people from all over the country will take part," Lisa said. "We will join the Indians in a three-day fast to show them that we sympathize with their plight. We're going to powwow with them and let them tell us what we can do to help. They need our support. They've been stripped of their pride in our schools where all they read about is Custer. They are a wonderful people — warm, friendly, hospitable with strong family bonds."

Lisa, a petite dynamo with giant-size energy, feels strongly about what the Foundation can accomplish.

"Sooner or later, hunger in Appalachia or in India affects all of us," she said. "We're not out to change the world. All we want to do is help the people of the world and stop some of the suffering."

Lisa Young

hospital, but I really wanted to get involved with patients."

Pre-med studies are just one facet of her busy life. Lisa, involved with the American Freedom from Hunger Foundation since her senior year of high school, was recently elected chairman of its National Governing Board of Trustees, the youngest and the first of her sex to head the Board. (She replaced 66-year-old Robert Nathan, an economic consultant, who was advisor to four Presidents.)

Fighting Poverty

The Foundation is the organization which in the last six years has raised about $14 million for hunger-and-poverty-alleviating programs, and it's all been done with the "footpower" of millions of young people.

"Our big activity each year," said the head of the Board, "is what we call a 'Walk for Development.' The Walks take place in major cities. Each walker — and four out of five are teenagers — has sponsors who agree in advance to pay a certain sum for each mile walked. That's how we raise money."

"We had one walker who was sponsored for $250 per mile. We were egging him on because $250 times 30 miles is $7,500. Thank goodness, he had strong arches."

This year more than a quarter-million walkers participated and it is expected that their sponsors (business and community leaders, friends and relatives) will contribute close to $2½ million to the Foundation.

Self-help Programs

How is the money spent? To help people help themselves.

"The Projects Committee compiles a list of worthy causes," said Lisa. "The list is given to local leaders and each group then decides which activities it want to fund."

There is just one stipulation: The money must be evenly divided between

IRANIAN EGGPLANT CASSEROLE

For adventurous cooks!
2 eggplants (each about 1 1/4 pounds), peeled and cut into 1/2-inch slices
2 teaspoons salt
1 cup (about) peanut oil
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Yogurt

Sprinkle eggplant with 1 1/2 teaspoons salt and place in large bowl. Cover with a plate and weigh down with a heavy object. Let stand 45 minutes. Drain off liquid. Heat 1/4 cup of the oil in a large skillet over moderate heat. Add eggplant and cook, a few slices at a time, until soft and lightly browned. Add more oil as needed. Place cooked eggplant in a large bowl. Add remaining 1/2 teaspoon salt, the pepper, garlic and lemon juice; mash well. Beat eggs until foamy; fold into eggplant mixture. Turn into oiled 1 1/2-quart shallow baking dish. Bake at 350 degrees about 45 minutes. Serve with yogurt. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

MRS. GARY L. ROHRER

Miss Lilly, Mr. Rohrer exchange marriage vows

Rev. Denis Howard performed the double-ring ceremony which united in marriage Miss Sharon Lynn Lilly and Gary Lee Rohrer. The ceremony took place in the Fayette Bible Church July 14.

Candelabra adorned with assorted multi-colored flowers, greenery and bows completed the setting. The pews were marked with greenery and rainbow ribbon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Lilly and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rohrer, all of New Holland.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of nylon organza. Delicate detailing with daisy trim and rich cotton lace lavished the empire bodice. The long sheer lantern sleeves ended in lace. The full flowing skirt ended in a train. Her long flowing mantilla of silk illusion was edged in matching lace. The bride's only jewelry was a silver cross necklace, a gift of the groom. She carried an arrangement of white sweetheart roses, carnations and orchids and baby's breath.

Mrs. Lilly was matron of honor, and Miss Terri Johnson was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Mike Barton, Mrs. Jerry Burton and Miss Kathy Smith. Miss Jetta Sue Mackey was the junior bridesmaid.

Mrs. Lilly wore a mint green chiffon formal length gown with empire waist and long sheer sleeves. A large bow was at the back. She wore a matching picture hat. Miss Johnson wore a pale pink floral chiffon gown with matching hat. The other attendants wore matching gowns except in multi-colors of blue, lavender, yellow and peach with matching picture hats. They carried hurricane lamps with daisies, carnations, statice and baby's breath.

The Misses Melanie and Kristi Doyle, nieces of the groom, were flower girls. Their dresses were like the other attendants except in mint green and pink and they carried baskets of spring flowers.

Randy Rohrer served as best man for his brother. Seating the wedding guests were Mike Barton of Mount Sterling, senior usher, Neil Woods of New Holland, Bruce Lilly of Circleville, and Randy Kirkpatrick of New Holland. Brian Rohrer, cousin of the groom, was the ring bearer.

Mrs. Lilly, mother of the bride, wore a formal length gown of ivory white knit with popcorn stitch bodice, and long sleeves with ivory accessories. Mrs. Rohrer, the groom's mother wore a long pastel gown with long sheer sleeves with which she combined white accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of pink and green carnations.

Hostesses for the reception which followed in Fellowship Hall were Mrs. Marvin Roszmann, Mrs. Jerry Sparks, Miss Karen Van Meter, Miss Kathy Salyers, Miss Nella Surgenor and Miss Debbie Krupla.

For her going away outfit, the new Mrs. Rohrer chose a full-length yellow halter top dress. Following a trip to Niagara Falls, the couple is now residing at 208 W. Front St., New Holland.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Rohrer are graduates of Miami Trace High School. He is employed at International Harvester in Springfield.

Lamb dishes help keep food costs low

By TOM HOGE

AP Newsfeatures Writer

In this day of soaring meat costs, it is refreshing to note the modest price labels on the spring lamb coming in from New Zealand, a pleasant land that is spring-like most of the year.

I learned some interesting things about New Zealand lamb while lunching recently with Joe Pereira, noted chef who ran the restaurant complex at the New Zealand Pavilion for Expo '70 in Osaka, Japan.

For instance, there are more than 60 million sheep grazing on New Zealand farms or roughly 20 sheep for every human being in that country. Small wonder that more than nine tenths of the country's export earnings come from farm products. In fact, grassland farming has enabled New Zealand to become the world's prime exporter of lamb. The balmy weather that lasts most of the year "down under" and the moist green pastures make ideal conditions for raising sheep.

"Our sheep are milk-fed, pastured and then flash-frozen at the peak of tenderness," said Pereira, munching on a lamb chop.

All New Zealand lamb is comparatively reasonable, but for a real bargain get lamb shoulder which can be cut into chops, grilled or diced for stew. Or you can try the "down under" version of the New England boiled dinner.

Those of us who operate on a tight household budget might keep in mind the fact that lamb makes good leftover dishes. For instance, when you roast a leg of lamb, you can put the remainder to many uses. Lamb curry is delicious, and so are green peppers stuffed with ground lamb and rice and then baked. There is lamb and onion hash, lamb pies with a mashed potato crust and even a dish known as Hong Kong lamb chow mein.

For something different try this recipe for New Zealand Boiled Dinner.

- 1 lamb shoulder about 5 pounds
- 4 quarts of water or enough to cover
- 8 sprigs parsley
- 6 peppercorns
- 4 whole cloves
- 3 cloves garlic
- 2 teaspoons thyme
- 2 bay leaves
- 2 tablespoons salt
- 1 small cabbage quartered
- 3 carrots, peeled and quartered
- 12 small white onions, peeled
- 12 small white potatoes, peeled
- 2 small turnips, peeled and sliced
- 6 small beets, cooked and sliced
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Remove outer tissue from lamb and trim excess fat. Place meat in large kettle. Pour in water, adding seasonings and simmer till tender, or about 90 minutes. One half hour before serving, add all vegetables, except beets. When tender, drain vegetables and meat. Reserve stock. Arrange lamb on large platter and surround with vegetables. Add beets, sprinkle potatoes with parsley. Makes 6 servings. Good with chilled ale.

1,000 miles in saddle to aid underprivileged

CAPETOWN, S. Africa (AP) — An 18-year-old girl rode an Arabian horse more than 1,000 miles from Pretoria to Cape Town, to raise money for underprivileged children and to demonstrate the worth of the breed.

The girl said she found her mount very adaptable and fantastic in traffic.

You can save money and conserve energy by keeping your car well tuned and the emission control equipment working properly. Change air and oil filters regularly and be sure your tires are properly inflated.

She's two short

This is two inches below the minimum height standard for staff members, which was set, said hospital directors, according to medical advice.

Fat women 'beautiful' when hunger threatens

QUEBEC (AP) — In times or places where men fear starvation, the fat woman is beautiful, says Dr. Jean Tremolieres, of the dietary research unit at the Bichat Hospital in Paris.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the Canadian Pediatric Society here, Tremolieres said a woman's plumpness offers reassurance that the fear of starvation will not come true.

You can save money and help improve the environment by starting a compost heap of leaves, grass, vegetable scraps, and other biodegradable waste. The compost will be a valuable addition to your vegetable and flower gardens next year.

Coming week to be critical for beef sales

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — This weekend may be the last for awhile that shoppers will find unlimited amounts of beef awaiting their purchase.

Retailers predict next week to be critical for beef sales. They say consumers will then feel the affect of the closings this week of many major Ohio meat packing firms.

Great Scot stores in Findlay has already announced it is limiting meat purchases to one-third of a customer's total bill.

"If I put all my beef out now, it would be gone by tonight," said Charles Sheets, manager of a Columbus IGA store.

Large chains reported adequate supplies of all meat cuts, but most said they were displaying beef in limited quantities to discourage hoarding.

"We don't put it all out at once. I say, let the customer's consciences be their guides," said Jack Anderson, a manager at a Big Bear store.

Anderson said Big Bear, which owns its own meat processing plant, would have adequate supplies for at least another week.

"After that, who knows?" Anderson said.

In Cleveland, a Kroger spokesman said the chain had no shortages of beef, pork, poultry or dairy products there as weekend shopping began. No limit was put on meat purchases.

"We're selling it strictly on a first-come, first-served basis," he said.

Canadian beef was selling at 30 per cent higher than domestic beef and rising, he said. "It's getting ridiculous and we're going to quit buying Canadian beef if they keep raising prices," he said.

A survey of retail outlets in the Cincinnati area indicated that people still were buying meat in huge quantities, but there were no serious shortages.

One Columbus A & P meat manager looked optimistically at the shortage of red meat.

"After all the beef is gone, we will have nothing but profitable items, such as pork and poultry for sale," Joe Groom said.

Watergate case

campaign, said his long-standing loyalty to the President prompted him to warn him last July about "confusion" in the FBI's Watergate investigation.

Gray said he had been getting conflicting information from Dean, Ehrlichman, CIA Director Richard Helms and CIA Deputy Director Vernon Walters about whether his investigation would uncover CIA secrets in Mexico.

Gray says he didn't know the extent to which White House staff members had pushed Helms and Walters to interfere. The FBI was tracking of Nixon campaign money that went through Mexico and into the account of wiretapper Bernard L. Barker, a former CIA hireling.

Gray said that on July 6, when Walters finally told him that no CIA secrets would be uncovered by the investigation, "I was confused, uncertain and uneasy." Gray and Walters agreed Gray should call Nixon.

He got in touch with Nixon by telephone and told him, "Dick Walters and I feel that people on your staff are trying to mortally wound you by using the CIA and FBI ..."

Gray said he didn't tell Nixon anything more specific. "There was a slight pause and the President said, 'Pat, you just continue to conduct your aggressive and thorough investigation.'"

Gray said he had no further trouble, and concluded he had been an alarmist.

Gray is scheduled to return to the witness chair Monday at 9:30 a.m. EDT to begin answering questions. The committee plans to question two more witnesses, Petersen and former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, before going into summer recess.

In other developments, White House chief of staff Alexander Haig said President Nixon briefed him on the contents of the controversial Oval Office tapes and telephone conversations.

Haig said he originally wanted to release the contents of the tapes to clear up the Watergate controversy, but changed his mind because of a "general conclusion (among Nixon aides) that the tapes would not be a major factor."

Haig made his comments in an interview with Mike Wallace on the CBS-TV program "60 Minutes."

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Beginning the first of next year, Ohio drivers will receive their licenses on the spot, including a color photograph.
Highway Safety Director Eugene O'Grady said Friday the state awarded a contract to supply the licenses to Polaroid Corp. beginning Jan. 1, 1974, at a cost of 33.9 cents for each license.

"The on-site licensing program will allow the motorist to get his license on the spot, without having to wait for processing and mailing from Columbus," O'Grady said.

In addition, photographs should provide the public with positive identification for banking and shopping, while aiding policemen making traffic arrests or vehicle checks, he said.

Drivers' licenses will continue to be issued for four years. Addition of the color photo will not increase the current cost of $5.50 per license, he said.

Bengals in exhibition opener tonight

MIAMI (AP) — Jim Del Gaizo, the second-year Miami Dolphins' quarterback who says he'd rather be traded than spend another year backing up Bob Griese and Earl Morrall, gets a chance to display his talents tonight against the Cincinnati Bengals.

But the lefty has refused interviews to reporters and says he won't talk to anyone until after the National Football League exhibition.

Both clubs are expected to use younger players most of the way tonight—although Bengal Coach Paul Brown says he will start his regulars.

But Brown said he plans to take "a good look" at his younger players at various stages of the game.

Dolphin Coach Don Shula says Morrall and running back Larry Csonka will not play at all. He said Griese and receivers Paul Warfield and Howard Twilley may see action.

Meanwhile, linebacker Nick Buoniconti said Friday that too much is being made out of the Dolphins' 18-game winning streak.

"The fans, the press, they've got to have a more relaxed attitude about these exhibition games," said Buoniconti.

"Everybody's worried if we're going to win our 19th straight," he said. "If we win they'll be worried about No. 20."

Buoniconti said he realizes that fans who pay $7 and $8 a seat deserve to see the veterans "knocking heads."

However, the veteran middle linebacker added: "When the veterans are playing and the rookies are sitting instead of the other way around, how can a head coach properly evaluate his young talent?"

Last year, the Bengals defeated the Dolphins 27-10 in a preseason opener.

Wilson sparkles for Astros

Nolan's arm sore as Cincy splits

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Houston pitcher Don Wilson was hoping for a little help against Cincinnati's booming bats. The Astros gave him one run, but it was enough.

"I kidded Lee May on the bus coming to the park. I told him maybe the Reds had tired themselves out against Atlanta," said Wilson after hurling a 10-inning 1-0 shutout in the first game of a doubleheader Friday.

The Reds, who overpowered Atlanta 17-2 the night before, managed only four hits off Wilson, but regained their hard-hitting ways to take the nightcap 11-5.

It was the fifth time the Reds scored more than 10 runs in a game during the past week.

The victory was Wilson's first since July 1 and moved him within one of the Astros' club shutout record of 16 held by teammate Larry Dierker.

"I don't know why I pitch some of my best ball against the Reds," said Wilson, who nohit Cincinnati in 1969. Now 7-12 for the season, he has a 13-11 career mark against the Reds.

The Astros scored their 10th inning run when Cesar Cedeño's sacrifice fly scored Tommy Agee, who got on base on a throwing error by shortstop Darrell Chaney. Roger Metzger's single moved Agee to third.

The run ended a brilliant pitching duel which began with the Reds' Gary

Nolan, recently removed from the disabled list, blanking the Astros for six innings.

But his performance was not without problems. Nolan asked to be taken out of the game early, but stayed.

"I'm glad I kept us in the game, but I'm not glad about the way I felt. The arm was sore. It's hard to describe, and I can't put it into words," he said.

"He didn't think he was going to make it," said Manager Sparky Anderson. "I thought he did fine."

Catcher Johnny Bench added a negative note.

"It's wishful thinking to say he's back. You can't fool anyone who saw it. He's hurting. It wasn't there and he didn't want to foul us up. He's been under a lot of pressure and a lot of demands," said Bench.

Clay Carroll, 3-6, took the loss.

In the nightcap, Houston erupted for four runs in the first inning and held a 5-4 lead before the Reds exploded for seven runs in the seventh, capped by Pete Rose's three-run bases-loaded double.

A record regular season crowd of 52,285 watched the contrasts in achieving victory.

Reliever Pedro Borbon, 4-4, took the win and Tom Griffin, 0-4, was the loser.

"We had to win that one," said Rose. "It was a must game for us." Rose's 4-for-8 performance lifted his batting average to .339.

The Reds were to send Fred Norman, 9-9, against former San Diego teammate Dave Roberts, 11-8, today.

SPRUNGING UP CONTINUES — Workmen continue a Washington C.H.'s opening football game Sept. 7 with sprucing up project at Gardner Stadium by painting seats. Columbus Bishop Stadium recently received a new scoreboard which replaces the often-confusing digital model.

Eaglettes win title in women's golf loop

The Eaglettes captured honors in the women's golf league Friday at the Washington Country Club, despite suffering a 15-9 loss to the last-place Bogeyettes.

The race in the women's league was tight as only 16 points separated the four teams.

In other action Friday, the Parettes scored a 15-9 win over the second-place Birdiettes.

Reds tickets on sale

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds announced today that due to an unusual demand, tickets for outfield seats are on sale for a three-game series with Atlanta Sept. 14-16.

The Reds said they are being deluged with requests for left and center field seats as Hank Aaron of the Braves continues his pursuit of Babe Ruth's alltime home run record.

Lions nip Redskins in exhibition fray

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Duane Thomas made his first National Football League appearance since leading Dallas to its Super Bowl victory over a year ago, but it didn't help Washington very much as the Redskins were upended by the Detroit Lions 17-14 in their exhibition opener Friday night.

Errol Mann booted a 10-yard field goal early in the fourth period for the winning margin as the Lions toppled the defending National Conference champions.

Greg Landry tossed a nineyard touchdown pass to wide receiver Larry Walton and veteran running back Mel Farr scored on a 47-yard dash for Detroit's touchdowns. Billy Kilmer hooked up with Jerry Smith on a two-yard touchdown pass and Moses Denson scored on a six-yard run for Washington's points.

Thomas, acquired recently from the San Diego Chargers, sat out the 1972

season after starring in Dallas' Super Bowl triumph in Jan., 1972. He carried the ball 11 times and gained 36 yards.

Last year's NFL most valuable player, Washington running back Larry Brown, did not play. He only recently signed his contract.

In other exhibition games Friday night, Bobby Howfield's 23-yard field goal with 1:35 left to play lifted the New York Jets to a 17-14 decision over the Houston Oilers and Otto Stowe caught a pair of touchdown passes to lead the Dallas Cowboys to a 24-7 victory over the Los Angeles Rams, spoiling the debuts of Rams coach Chuck Knox and quarterback John Hadl.

In tonight's action, the Baltimore Colts play the Steelers at Pittsburgh, the Buffalo Bills meet the Philadelphia Eagles at Jacksonville, Fla., the Cincinnati Bengals are at Miami for a game against the Dolphins, the New Orleans Saints travel to Kansas City to oppose the Chiefs, the New York Giants meet the Chargers at San Diego and the Chicago Bears square off against the Green Bay Packers at Milwaukee.

Sunday night, the Oakland Raiders meet the New England Patriots at Foxboro, Mass. The San Francisco 49ers face the Browns at Cleveland Monday night, completing the first full weekend of exhibition play.

County BR stars pop Greenfield in opener

The Fayette County Babe Ruth All-Star team, behind a solid offensive attack and the combined three-hit pitching performance of Howard Boggs and Jeff Elliot, paddled Greenfield 11-3 in the opening round of the Fayette County Babe Ruth tournament Friday night at Roszmamm Field.

While Boggs and Elliot were handcuffing the Greenfield hitters, Ted Mercer and Mark Jones supplied the necessary firepower for the county stars managed by Buck Cauley.

Mercer sparked the offensive attack for the Fayette Countians as he cracked a three-run home run and drove in a total of four runs. Mark Jones also pounded a roundtripper, while Jack James had two hits in four appearances at the plate and Wes Williams had a single and two runs batted in.

DEFENSIVE gems by Mark Fisher and Rex Coe stopped several Greenfield scoring threats.

Greenfield pushed across an unearned run in the first and held the Fayette Countians scoreless until a third inning explosion when the county stars erupted for six runs as a total of 10 batters stroled to the plate.

In the productive third inning, the Fayette Countians had five singles and three walks.

Mercer slammed his three-run homer over the rightfield fence in the fourth when the county stars added three more runs, but Greenfield countered with two runs on doubles by Cole and Nelson. In the fifth frame, Mark Jones hit a two-out homer over the centerfield fence.

Boggs hurled five innings, allowing only two hits and fanned a total of six batters. He was relieved by Elliot who gave up one hit and fanned four. Nelson absorbed the setback for Greenfield and Wisecup provided relief help.

In the second game at Roszmamm Field Friday, Gahanna scored a 9-7 win over Jamestown.

Jamestown and Greenfield will clash at 1 p.m. today while the Fayette County stars will meet Gahanna in the 3:30 p.m. game. The tourney's championship game is tentatively scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday.

Buckeye Hills quartet takes Pro-Am tourney

GREENFIELD — A team from Buckeye Hills Country Club near Greenfield captured top honors in the Greater Cincinnati Pro-Am tournament held recently at the Cincinnati Pleasant Run Golf Center.

The quartet of club pro Tom Robertson, of Greenfield, Tom Blackstone, of Greenfield, and Jim Croker and Bob Snider, both of Washington C.H. turned in a sizzling 115 total with handicap, which was 27-under-par.

Robertson shot a 71 which was only three strokes off the winning 68 score turned in by pro Pete Jannott, of the Jack Nicklaus Kings Island Golf Center. There were 43 teams entered in the tournament.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

Caution and conservatism stressed. Above all, avoid persons who are impulsively taking risks.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

Mixed influences. You may encounter some frustrating situations during the a.m. but the tide will turn in your favor later in the day.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

Some misunderstandings presaged in unexpected areas. Counteract with poise, tact and a sincere desire to clear the air.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

Some new trends in the making. Study carefully and be sure to check all propositions before accepting. Romance and travel favored.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Some tension indicated. Avoid highly strung or neurotic persons, and keep out of situations which could needlessly involve you in others' problems.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

A better-than-average day — one which encourages your best efforts. Stretch the imagination without overplaying it. Concentrate on new methods, ideas.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Auspicious for just about anything that strengthens the link between men of good will and counteracts indiscretion, hotheadedness and intolerance.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

You can coast on your laurels if you do not actually waste time or dissipate talents. The restful day is also useful, indulged with proper purpose.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

A fine Uranus aspect encourages your particular know-how, sensitivity to situations and reasoning powers. These are winners always — but especially now.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Some situations complicated. Be sure you have all the facts before making decisions. Whether day is for recreation or you have strenuous tasks, remain serene.

YOU BORN TODAY are one of the most versatile of all Leoties — and that is saying a lot. You have so many talents and so much imagination that you may find it difficult, at first, to find your proper niche in life. Once you have found it, however, there is no limit to the heights you can attain. You would make an excellent writer, a brilliant actor, a dynamic lawyer or statesman, but can also shine in the business world where your organizing and executive abilities, coupled with your gifts of leadership, salesmanship and promotion would take you to the top in a most dramatic way. Traits to curb: fault-finding, overaggressiveness and obstinacy.

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

You may be tempted by a business offer, but find out just what it entails. Above all, don't fall for any get-rich-quick schemes.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

Keep emotions under stern control. Any tendency to "fly off the handle" could result in serious misunderstandings.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

Curb an inclination to take on more than you can reasonably handle. You will only scatter energies and accomplish less in the long run.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

A conflict between business and personal affairs may bring on some tension. You can counter by isolating

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Stellar influences favor business and financial affairs. Day will be especially good for making long-term commitments and handling real estate matters.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

A day in which to make new starts — in new directions; to lead rather than to follow. Stellar influences favor all pioneering efforts.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Especially favored now: Educational pursuits, travel, research. Achievement is possible in out-of-the-ordinary ways and places.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Splendid aspects stimulate artistry and encourage new tries at enterprises which may have failed before but still have potential.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Study reasons for existing limitations. Concentrate on significant issues without neglecting minor items. A good period for tackling jobs that require patience.

Birth certificate link to McGovern at Fort Wayne?

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP)—A search is expected to begin Tuesday or Wednesday for a birth certificate allegedly naming George S. McGovern as father of an illegitimate child.

Saying he was "very reluctant to authorize any sort of snooping expedition," U.S. District Judge Hermann E. Busse Friday gave limited approval to a check of illegitimate birth records here.

The Washington Post reported this week that the "Fort Wayne story" mentioned in the Senate Watergate hearings was that McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential candidate, had fathered an illegitimate child here in the early 1940s.

The South Dakota Democrat denied the story.

The "Fort Wayne story" was referred to in a memorandum from former White House Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman. The nature of the story was not revealed at the hearings.

Busse granted access to the confidential records to attorneys for the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel and the city health department on condition that if the controversial birth certificate is found, the mother and child's name will be withheld.

He also stipulated the newspaper should tell the public if the search is unsuccessful.

Attorneys said they plan to meet Monday and would start the checks by Wednesday morning.

"I'm a Republican, but I wouldn't go along with scandalizing George McGovern," Busse said before issuing the order. "I wouldn't go along with trying to hang him to a tree or anything like that."

The Washington Post said it had confirmed existence her of a birth certificate listing a George S. McGovern of Mitchell, S.D., as the father of a child born out of wedlock. Mitchell is Sen. McGovern's hometown.

The newspaper said the mother told it her late husband, not McGovern, was the father. She said she had known McGovern in the 1940s but hadn't listed his name on the birth certificate and didn't know who did.

A former Fort Wayne health department employee said Friday she recalls an incident last year over what she believes is the same birth certificate. But Virginia McVay, formerly in charge of the records division for the Fort Wayne Board of Health, said the certificate never contained the name of the father.

She said a man who carried an identification card from the U.S. Senate attempted to get a copy of the birth certificate on Aug. 18, 1972.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

If you missed the mark somewhere, review causes and effects. A change in methods and reasoning may be necessary. A new day for achievement and a new way is before you.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Avoid any urge to take foolish chances, but do not be so hesitant that you lose a golden opportunity. Foresightedness needed.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Avoid extremes and don't misjudge others' intentions or actions. Work may seem strenuous, people around you more difficult to get along with, but YOU can cope with days like this.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with an innate quality of leadership; are high-spirited, imaginative and, with your great love of beauty, music and the theater, would hardly be attracted to any vocation which precluded all three. The theater should be your first choice — as actor, producer, director — but you may well write, in which case, you will inject both beauty and drama into your work. Your flair for the dramatic may also lead you into becoming a brilliant trial lawyer and, in business, you would make an outstanding executive.

The outlook is for mostly sunny skies in Ohio Saturday and Sunday, with little chance of rain.

High temperatures during the period will be in the lower 80s Saturday and up a little into the mid 80s Sunday except upper 70s near Lake Erie. During the night temperatures will cool to the upper 50s and lower 60s.

Skies were mostly clear over Ohio Friday night and Saturday morning and some patchy clouds remained in eastern Ohio and patchy ground fog formed in some valleys and near streams. There were a few widely scattered showers detected by radar in eastern sections of the state Friday evening but these moved into Pennsylvania and West Virginia during the early morning hours.

Fair and warm Monday through Wednesday. Highs in the 80s. Lows in the 60s.

Burr Oak Park lodge, cabins closed down

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The lodge and cabins at Burr Oak State Park near Glouster were closed today by order of Gov. John Gilligan after three bomb scares in the last four days.

Gilligan's order will be in effect for a maximum of 60 days.

Gilligan said he ordered the park's closure on the recommendation of Morgan County Sheriff Paul Work "to insure the safety of innocent Ohio citizens and protection of state property."

Management and employees of Ohio Inns Inc., which operates the lodge and restaurant, have been at odds for months over recognition of a union.

An attorney for Ohio Inns said today the firm will sue the state for damages if the lodge and restaurant are closed for any length of time.

The attorney, Robert Townsend of Cincinnati, said the state should call out Ohio National Guardsmen to protect park visitors and allow continued free access to the area.

Officials said only the lodge and cabins were being closed. The park remains open for boating, fishing and other activities.

Trouble started developing at the lodge after about 50 members of Hotel Workers Local 505 went on strike in April and Ohio Inns hired workers to replace them.

Picketing has continued and there have been rock-throwing incidents. One recent bomb scare routed guests from their rooms at 2:30 a.m.

Officials said the Ohio Highway Patrol was prevented from intervening by a state law which prohibits it from entering labor disputes.

'John Doe' warrant issued in murder

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—A "John Doe" murder warrant was issued by Newark police Friday for a man wanted in the slaying of a man whose body was found this week under a box in an abandoned gravel pit.

Pathologists said the death of Michael Durham, 19, of Tinley Park, Ill., was due to throat wounds and possible strangulation. Police theorize he was killed by a hitchhiker.

Hotel falls; believe 5 persons dead

NEW YORK (AP) — Firemen using two cranes searched truckloads of rubble today for persons feared buried when an eight-story section of the once-elegant Broadway Central Hotel collapsed.

By dawn, fire officials had accounted for all but five of those registered at the hotel. They said customers and employees in a novelty shop in the collapsed section also might have been trapped.

Most of those in the 119-year-old former landmark in the East Village, now the University Hotel, escaped when rumbles sent plaster to the floors before of the thundering collapse late Friday afternoon.

At least 19 persons, including three policemen and a fireman, were treated at hospitals and released. More than 100 were made homeless and relocated.

There were 325 persons registered at the hotel, 23 of them in the part that tumbled down. About 120 of those staying in the hotel are welfare clients living by themselves.

Fire Chief John T. O'Hagan attributed the collapse to age and the weakening of the structure by decades of vibrations from street and subway traffic.

The entire south-central section and parts of the east wall cascaded in a roaring avalanche of wood, brick and mortar that piled 20 feet high at some points along Broadway.

Cardiac pacemaker recall ordered by FDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration says it is considering the recall of 317 German-built cardiac pacemakers that are in the possession of doctors and patients.

On Friday, the federal agency announced that the manufacturer and American distributor of the device had recalled 159 units in the possession of salesmen and distributors.

Financial overhaul plan explained

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has proposed a major overhaul of the country's banking system to raise interest rates on savings deposits and make it easier to buy a home.

Nixon proposed lifting over a 5½ year period the 5 to 5½ per cent ceiling on interest rates that banks and savings and loan associations can pay on savings deposits.

He called the existing system outmoded and said the interest limitations often forced investors to go elsewhere with their money to get a higher return.

This, said Nixon, "created unnecessarily severe burdens for the business community and the consuming public."

A main goal of Nixon's banking package, said administration officials Friday, is to guarantee a consistent flow of money into banks and savings and loan associations. This will assure that the financial institutions, in turn, have enough money to make loans and offer home mortgages at reasonable rates even during periods of tight money, they said.

William E. Simon, deputy treasury secretary, said a major goal of the

Deadline is Wednesday

Village offices lack candidates

There are only three days remaining for candidates to file nominating petitions for the Nov. 6 general election, but there are still many positions, especially in Fayette County villages, without candidates, according to Mrs. Mary Jean Jennings, county director of elections.

Mrs. Jennings is urging persons who intend to be candidates to file petitions by the 4 p.m. Wednesday deadline. She also pointed out that write-in votes in the Nov. 6 election will not count unless the person whose name has been written in has filed a declaration of intent to be a write-in candidate 20 days preceding the election.

No one has filed for any of the villages offices. Four village council members are to be elected in each of Milledgeville, Octa, Jeffersonville and Bloomingburg. Treasurers are to be elected in Octa and Jeffersonville, and one member is to be selected to the boards of public affairs in Jeffersonville and Bloomingburg.

Kenneth A. Payton, an incumbent, is the only candidate to file for the County Board of Education. The terms of Dwight I. Duff and Marion Waddle will also expire but neither has filed for re-election.

The two incumbents whose terms expire on the Washington C.H. Board of Education have not filed for re-election. Petitions have been filed by Philip Morrow and Mrs. Robert (Kathryn) Lee. The incumbents whose terms expire are Mark J. Schaeper and Fred L. Domenico.

Billie Wilson is the only incumbent to file for re-election to Washington City Council, however, eight other candidates are seeking the four council seats which will be open. Those who have filed petitions are Fred Rost, Larry D. Bennett, Chester F. Hamulak, Bertha McCullough, William Stolzenburg, Fay Washburn, Joseph Murphy, and George Hall.

Other Councilmen whose terms will expire are Ralph Cook, Hugh S. Patton. The position previously held by John M. Arnold is also to be filled in November. Arnold resigned in February, and council has been operating one person short ever since. Arnold's term would have expired Dec. 31, 1973.

Nominating petitions for township trustee positions have been filed by:

Concord — Robert F. Garland, of Rt. 2, Washington C.H., incumbent. Green — Donald J. Rife and Edward B. Corzatt, both of Rt. 2, Leesburg, incumbents.

Jasper — no filings. Jefferson — Ernest E. Jenks, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, incumbent; J. W. Sears, Rt. 1 South Solon, incumbent, and Ralph Davidson, of Rt. 1, Washington C.H.

Madison — Lawrence E. Grim and Russell D. Lindsey, both of Rt. 1, Mount Sterling, incumbents. Marion — Woodrow Workman and Alvin E. Writsel, both of Rt. 1, New Holland, incumbents.

Paint — No filings. Perry — Marion Cockeril, of Rt. 1 Greenfield, incumbent.

Union Jack Cabbage, Rt. 4, Washington C.H., incumbent; Ronald Campbell, Rt. 4, Washington C.H., and Ray E. Coe, Rt. 4, Washington C.H. Wayne — No filings.

Two trustees are to be elected in each township.

A local option issue will appear on the ballot in Perry Township. Billie L. Haines, Rt. 1, Greenfield, filed petitions Friday to place the issue before the voters. The question is for the sale of spirituous liquor by the glass.

package was assuring adequate funds for home mortgages.

"We are in a period that could be classified as an interest rate crunch," he said.

The administration also recommended tax credits for banks and thrift institutions as an added inducement to offer home mortgages.

Other major features include: —A proposal to permit savings and loan associations to offer checking account service.

—Proposed authorization for financial institutions to offer so-called NOW accounts which, in effect, are interest-bearing checking accounts.

—A recommendation that interest rate ceilings be removed on mortgage loans by the Federal Home Administration and Veterans Administration. These ceilings are said to have been a failure at holding down home mortgage rates.

—Giving credit unions wider access to loan funds.

Nixon said under the current system where interest on savings deposits is limited, "the consumer-saver was denied a fair market return on his savings while the consumer and small businessman, as borrowers, often could not obtain adequate funds to meet their requirements."

He said unless the ceilings were removed, more and more persons would take their money out of savings accounts and the flow of money into banks and savings and loan associations could begin drying up.

Storms hit broad areas

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Thunderstorms rumbled across broad areas of the nation today after hitting the Western mountains and Plains states with high winds and rain.

In the Southern California deserts, the storms brought locally heavy rains, gusty winds and rapidly rising waters late Friday. A flood warning remained in effect for part of the area.

A few intense storms lashed the Plains states, with more than an inch of rain and 60 mile-an-hour winds reported at Garden City, Kan.

A tornado was sighted south of Holly, Colo., and hail the size of golf balls pounded west-central Minnesota.

In Idaho, the government began disbanding crews fighting two large range fires set by lightning Monday. The fires covered had 69,000 acres before being brought under control Friday.

Scattered thunderstorms also drifted across northern New England, the Middle Atlantic States and southern Florida.

Much of the nation's midsection remained generally cool, but a heat wave continued across the Plateau.

Gilligan to sign lottery measure

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Gov. John Gilligan says he will sign "with some real concern" the measure providing for a state lottery.

The concern, he said, stems from lack of a commission he had asked for to study lottery operations before they begin.

Gilligan also said he would sign the bill providing a 25 per cent legislative pay increase.

He also said Ohio will save $1 million through use of new, five-year license plates. The savings will come from the four years in which plates won't have to be issued.

Dear friends,

Studies at Ohio State U. and elsewhere, show that people do want to find out more about death and funerals. They want solid information. They want answers to the questions they have been afraid to ask anyone. We, at our funeral home, offer to answer any questions you may have about embalming, burial, and any other aspects of the funeral service.
